"The Blue Marble" is a famous photograph of the Earth taken on December 7, 1972 by the crew of the Apollo 17 spacecraft en route to the Moon at a distance of about 29,000 kilometers (18,000 statute miles). It shows Africa, Antarctica, and the Arabian Peninsula. Photo taken by either Harrison Schmitt or Ron Evans (of the Apollo 17 crew). This file is in the public domain because it was created by NASA.

Introduction

SOCIAL STUDIES AND THE CREATION OF A DEMOCRATIC LEARNING COMMUNITY

Welcome to the world of social studies, where students have opportunities to interact with each other in democratic groups and communities, and to acquire the knowledge, values, and skills they need to become active, responsible citizens within our Canadian society. As they grow and learn the skills of citizenship, they not only contribute to their learning communities, but also contribute to the betterment of our society.

What do active, responsible citizens look like? They are aware of the world in which they live, and they care about people around them—the people with whom they share this planet, both near and far away. They know that their actions affect others. They have informed opinions, and think critically about issues that concern themselves and others. They have the confidence to make their voices heard, to take a stand on issues, and to engage in social action when necessary. They are concerned with the well-being of the environment, and live their lives in ways that reflect that concern.

Background

This document was produced originally by Manitoba Education, Citizenship and Youth, in collaboration with Manitoba educators. The document was well-suited for a base of Social Studies learning in the Northwest Territories. The document has been adapted for use in the Northwest Territories after a lengthy input, advisory and consultation process between Northern educators, administrators, and stakeholders and Early Childhood & School Services. The nature and quantity of the adaptation has been collaboratively determined by Northwest Territorial Advisory Committees and Departmental staff.

This document includes the core concept citizenship, and identifies general and specific learning outcomes. It integrates the four foundation skill areas of literacy and communication, problem solving, human relations, and technology, and provides ideas and strategies to support the implementation of social studies. It is mandated for use in all schools in the Northwest Territories.

A Brief History of the Social Studies Curriculum

In 1997, the NWT joined the Western and Northern Canadian Protocol (WNCP)¹ Common Curriculum Framework for Social Studies K-9 project. This was the first multi-jurisdictional curriculum project to include Aboriginal and francophone representatives as full and equal partners in a curriculum project designed for all students.

¹ In November 2003 the name was changed to the Western and Northern Canadian Protocol (WNCP) for Collaboration in Basic Education.

The NWT became the lead jurisdiction responsible for infusing Aboriginal perspectives within the Framework of learner outcomes. Consultations were undertaken in all parts of the NWT, and widely in all WNCPC jurisdictions, with educators, cultural advisors, Elders and curriculum writers. The final WNCPC Framework was published in 2002. Teacher advisory groups in the NWT recommended the Manitoba Foundations for Implementation documents as having the best fit for the NWT. An agreement was reached between the Department of Education, Culture and Employment and the Department of Education, Citizenship and Youth in Manitoba to adapt these documents in order to provide curriculum support documents that would be helpful to northern educators in their actual teaching of the learning outcomes that had been agreed to in the WNCPC project.

Adaptation of the Manitoba documents began in 2006, with experienced educators from across the NWT. Ongoing consultation with a variety of stakeholders, including particularly those concerned with the infusion of Dene Kede and Inuuqatigiit has been undertaken as these documents have been adapted for use in the NWT.

Document Adaptations

Document Adaptations

The Grade 2 Social Studies Communities in Canada: A Curriculum and Guide to Implementation has been adapted from Manitoba for use in the Northwest Territories. Although this document was chosen in part for the many similarities between the NWT and Manitoba, significant adaptations have been made to the document in order for it to meet the needs and reflect the realities of our territory. These adaptations embody pedagogical, philosophical and practical orientations that exist in the NWT. There are four main areas of adaptation that are reflected in this NWT document:

- English Language Arts (ELA)
- Culture-Based Education (CBE)
- Career Development (CD)
- Information and Communication Technology (ICT)

English Language Arts (ELA)

Many of the skills and processes employed in the NWT ELA curriculum parallel the skills described in social studies, often with a great degree of detail and direction to the student and teacher. These skills are primarily related to communication in its many forms. The NWT ELA curriculum describes this in the following way:

Language is the basis of all communication and the primary instrument of thought... As well as being a defining feature of culture, language is an unmistakable mark of personal identity, and is essential for forming interpersonal relationships, extending experience, reflecting on thought and action, and contributing to a democratic society.

Social Studies has very similar goals for itself, and the relationship between these two subject areas can provide rich opportunities for integration which foster student learning in ways that each subject area cannot achieve alone. As teachers become familiar with the connections between many ELA and social studies outcomes, it is anticipated that student learning will be more cohesive, and the overall class time needed to explore these outcomes will be significantly reduced as they are addressed in an integrated way instead of separately.

Appendix A and C in this document list the correlations of these ELA outcomes with those of social studies. In Appendix A of this document, the English Language Arts outcomes are listed below a type of social studies learning activity such as brainstorming or persuasive writing or making a presentation. In Appendix C, the English Language Arts outcomes appear within a skills checklist. In both instances, the outcomes are signaled by the “ELA” acronym. The ELA outcomes in the Appendices illustrate how and where relevant ELA outcomes can be most usefully integrated into social studies learning activities.

Culture-Based Education (CBE)

Culture-Based Education reflects the understanding that all education exists within a cultural context, and that student learning occurs most powerfully when this context is recognized and integrated in curriculum and teaching resources used in schools. In the NWT, CBE is particularly mandated to reflect our territory's Aboriginal perspectives. You will find overarching descriptions of these perspectives in the pages immediately below. There are also brief orienting statements from both Dene and Inuvialuit perspectives relating to social studies in the Northwest Territories on the 'Grade Overview' page. These statements are similar in intent but unique in format.

These perspectives are invitations to move toward whole experiences that make relationships with the land and people possible and meaningful in our northern context.

At the beginning of each cluster in this document, the Culture-Based Education outcomes are listed on a correlation table in columns to the right of the most appropriate social studies learning experience under the titles "Dene Kede" and "Inuuqatigiit". The purpose of including these Culture-Based Education outcomes on a correlation page is to illustrate how and where relevant CBE outcomes can be most usefully brought into social studies learning activities.

Career Development (CD)

A correlation has been made between social studies outcomes and Career Development outcomes as articulated by NWT's adopted Career Development (CD) Curriculum, the Blueprint of Life/Work Designs. The intent of this 'matching' is that educators will be able to address CD outcomes that are well aligned with social studies in the same lessons. Some competencies from the three main areas of Career Development (Personal Management, Learning and Work Exploration and Life/ Work Building) are well aligned with social studies outcomes. This is particularly true for outcomes that relate to identity building, assessing the impact of change, decision-making, and understanding informal and formal 'economies'. Addressing CD outcomes within SS will support student learning and capacity to negotiate the pathway toward his/her 'preferred future'.

At the beginning of each cluster in this document, the Career Development outcomes are listed on a correlation table in column to the right of the most appropriate social studies learning experience under the title "Careers". The purpose of including these CD outcomes on a correlation page is to illustrate how and where relevant CD outcomes can be most usefully brought into social studies learning activities.

Document AdaptationsInformation Communication Technology (ICT)

We live in an increasingly information-rich environment. Learners in the NWT need to be familiar with the processes, tools and techniques necessary to navigate in this environment. Information Communication Technology (ICT) provides a vehicle for communication, representing, inquiring, making decisions and solving problems.

Curriculum documents in the NWT reflect an alignment with the ICT outcomes contained in Alberta's ICT Framework. These outcomes are meant to be infused through the core curriculum subject areas in the NWT, including social studies. Manitoba's social studies curriculum documents contain ICT outcomes similar to Alberta's, but often use different language and examples to express the outcomes. The writers of this NWT social studies document have made every effort to bring into harmony these different approaches and to make them coherent within this curriculum document and to NWT teachers.

In Appendix A and C of this document, the Alberta ICT outcomes are indicated by the “>” icon and are placed with the most appropriate NWT skill outcome. The purpose of including these ICT outcomes in these appendices is to illustrate how and where relevant ICT outcomes can be most usefully brought into social studies learning activities.

Social Studies is the study of people in relation to each other and to their world. Social Studies helps students become active and responsible citizens within their communities, locally, nationally, and globally, in a complex and changing world. ¹

We the Dene believe:

- that education is holistic and must be founded upon the Dene worldview;
- that children are born with integrity, holding the land, and must be valued and respected for their worth in order to become the unique people they are meant to be;
- that the drum is to be the center of Dene existence; representing the self, in unity with the people, the land and the spirit. For one to grasp the drum is to be in tune with one's self, neighbors and the land as a means to keep the people together. The voice of the drum is used with integrity to speak the language of our Ancestors as we reinforce our way of life;
- that the drum dance is a powerful spiritual expression of self knowledge, interdependence and survival as a group;
- that the tipi is the representation of the holistic education of children on their journey to becoming capable adults. This is achieved through spiral learning where children are repeatedly exposed to the Dene teachings through the guidance of the Elders and the support of the community;
- and that in order to survive, humankind must maintain a respectful and harmonious relationship with one's self, others, the spiritual world and the land.

Dene Kede and the Social Studies curriculum focus on people in relation to each and the their world. The history of the Northwest Territories necessitates that Dene Kede is the foundation for teaching and learning Social Studies. This is best done through the guidance of elders and the support of the community.

The Inuvialuit and Inuinait Perspective

Social Studies is the study of people in relation to each other and their world. Social Studies helps students become active and responsible citizens within their communities, locally, nationally, and globally, in a complex and changing world.²

Changes to the lifestyles of the Inuvialuit and Inuinait have occurred quickly since schooling began in the Northwest Territories. Since the school system has played a role in making some of these changes, Inuvialuit and Inuinait have an expectation that the school system today will provide support for their cultural and linguistic priorities. Social Studies is one of the subject areas that can.

The Inuvialuit and Inuinait's worldview and perspectives are supported through Inuuqatigiit. The front matter and the Relationship to People sections of Inuuqatigiit provide a unique and enriching study for Inuvialuit and Inuinait students in Social Studies. It can also capitalize on the Relationship to the Environment section to enhance Social Studies topics as they relate to the environment.

Inuuqatigiit has articulated what is important to Inuvialuit and Inuinait to study, enhance, enrich and preserve. Some of the key elements from Inuuqatigiit that Social Studies can support are:

- Local histories of the Inuvialuit and Inuinait;
- Traditional knowledge;
- Inuvialuit and Inuinait values and beliefs from their worldview;
- Stories and ways of storytelling;
- Sewing and hunting techniques;
- Land activities and knowledge of the environment;
- Childrearing;
- Names and naming;
- Elders;
- Family relationships;
- Kinship;
- Leadership;
- Relationship with people and the land.

SOCIAL STUDIES IN THE NORTHWEST TERRITORIES--A KINDERGARTEN TO GRADE 4 OVERVIEW

Definition

Social studies is the study of people in relation to each other and their world. It is an interdisciplinary subject that draws upon history, geography, economics, law, political science and other disciplines. Social studies focuses on peoples' relationships with their social, physical, spiritual, cultural, economic, political, and technological environments. Social studies helps students become active and responsible citizens within their communities locally, nationally, and globally, in a complex and changing world. Social studies in the NWT is particularly informed by the foundational documents Dene Kede and Inuuqatigiit.

Vision

Social studies in the NWT is part of an overall educational program intended to meet the needs and reflect the nature of 21st century learners and has at its heart the concepts of citizenship and identity in the Canadian and global contexts. It is reflective of the diverse cultural perspectives, including Aboriginal and francophone, that contribute to the evolving realities in Canada. Social studies will ultimately contribute to a Canadian spirit—a spirit that will be fundamental in creating a sense of belonging for each one of our students as she or he engages in active and responsible citizenship locally, nationally, and globally, and to make informed and ethical choices when faced with the challenges of living in a pluralistic democratic country.

Goals of Social Studies

Social studies enables students to acquire the skills, knowledge, and values necessary to understand the world in which they live, to engage in active democratic citizenship, and to contribute to the betterment of society.

The goals of social studies learning span Kindergarten to Grade 4, and are divided into five categories:

- Canada
- The World
- The Environment
- Democracy
- General Skills and Competencies

Overview

With respect to Canada, social studies enables students to

- acquire knowledge and understanding of Canadian history and geography
 - appreciate the achievements of previous generations whose efforts contributed to the building of Canada
 - critically understand Canadian political structures and processes and the institutions of Canadian society
 - fulfill their responsibilities and understand their rights as Canadian citizens
- understand and respect the principles of Canadian democracy, including social justice, federalism, bilingualism, and pluralism
 - analyze Canadian public issues and take rationally and morally defensible positions
 - develop a sense of belonging to their communities and to Canadian society
 - respect Aboriginal perspectives, francophone perspectives, and the perspectives of the many cultural groups that have shaped Canada, past and present

With respect to the world, social studies enables students to

- acquire knowledge and understanding of world history and geography
 - respect the world's peoples and cultures through a commitment to human rights, equity, and the dignity of all persons
 - develop global awareness and a sense of global citizenship
 - understand and appreciate the role of international organizations
 - analyze global issues and take rationally and morally defensible positions
- develop a commitment to social justice and quality of life for all the world's peoples
 - assess questions of national self-interest and the interests of other countries and the world as whole

With respect to the environment, social studies enables students to

- acquire and apply geographic skills, knowledge, and understanding
- recognize that a sustainable natural environment is essential to human life
- assess the impact of human interaction with the environment
- propose possible solutions to environmental problems
- live in ways that respect principles of environmental stewardship and sustainability

With respect to democracy, social studies enables students to

- critically understand the history, nature, and implications of democracy
 - assess alternatives to democracy, past and present
 - understand the history and foundations of parliamentary democracy in Canada
 - demonstrate a commitment to democratic ideals and principles, including respect for human rights, principles of social justice, equity, freedom, dissent and differences, and willingness to take action for the public good
 - participate in public affairs in accordance with democratic principles
 - critically understand the role of various institutions in civil society
- recognize that democracy involves negotiation and that political and social problems do not always have simple solutions
 - identify ways in which Canadian democracy could be improved, and work to improve it
 - participate as informed citizens in the ongoing debates that characterize democracy in Canada and the world
 - take a stand on matters of fundamental principle or individual conscience

With respect to general skills and competencies, social studies enables students to

- engage in disciplined inquiry, applying research skills, critical thinking, and decision making
 - think historically and geographically
 - critically analyze and research social issues, including controversial issues
 - work collaboratively and effectively with others
 - solve problems and address conflicts in creative, ethical, and non-violent ways
 - develop openness to new ideas and think beyond the limits of conventional wisdom
- apply effective communication skills and enhance media literacy
 - use and manage information and communication technologies

Overview

CITIZENSHIP AS A CORE CONCEPT IN SOCIAL STUDIES

Citizenship is the core concept that provides the learning focus for social studies at all grades. To identify the knowledge, values, and skills that students will need as active democratic citizens, social studies must take into account the society in which students live and anticipate the challenges they will face in the future. Citizenship is a fluid concept that changes over time: its meaning is often contested, and it is subject to interpretation and continuing debate. Achievement of learning outcomes related to citizenship will prepare students to participate in the public dialogue that characterizes any democracy and that plays an important role in Canadian society. As students engage in this dialogue, they will enhance their understanding of citizenship in Canada and the world, and will be better prepared to become active participants in their communities, locally, nationally, and globally.

Rationale for Citizenship Education

Citizenship education is fundamental to living in a democratic society. The concept of citizenship takes on meaning in specific contexts and is determined by time and place. Diverse notions of citizenship have been used in the past and are being used in the present, for both good and ill. Throughout much of history, citizenship has been exclusionary, class-based, racist, and sexist. In Canada, for instance, First Nations parents were forced to send their children to residential schools in the interests of citizenship.

The concept of citizenship must be considered within the context of democracy, human rights, and public debate. Social studies provides opportunities for students to explore the complexities of citizenship in four areas:

- Active Democratic Citizenship in Canada
- Canadian Citizenship for the Future
- Citizenship in the Global Context
- Environmental Citizenship

Active Democratic Citizenship in Canada

Since citizenship issues are rooted in the past, Canadian history occupies an important place in the social studies curriculum. Canada is regionally diverse and geographically expansive. It is organized as a federal parliamentary monarchy, with a mixed, albeit largely capitalist, economy. It is a bilingual and multicultural country committed to pluralism, human rights, and democracy. Globally, Canada is regarded as a prosperous, peaceful, and democratic country, although it still has its share of economic and social injustices and inequities.

Canada is a complex country that requires special qualities in its citizens. These citizenship qualities include:

- knowledge of Canadian history and geography
- understanding of the distinctive nature of Canadian society, the Canadian state, and its institutions
- the ability to approach public issues critically, rationally, and democratically
- informed involvement in public affairs

- respect for human rights and democratic ideals and principles
- a commitment to freedom, equality, and social justice
- the ability to work through conflicts and contradictions that can arise among citizens
- a willingness to live with ambiguity and uncertainty
- civility and tolerance for dissension and disagreement
- a willingness to balance the pursuit of private interests with concern for the public good
- the ability to balance personal claims of conscience and principle against the similar claims of others
- a sense of shared identity as Canadians, combined with realization that Canadian identity is multi-faceted, open to debate, and not exclusive of other identities

Canadian Citizenship for the Future

For the foreseeable future, Canadian citizens will likely continue to face issues such as

- balancing the jurisdictional claims of the provinces, territories, and the federal government
- redressing past and present injustices inflicted on Aboriginal peoples and other groups in Canada
- coming to terms with the complexities of Quebec's place in Canada
- balancing regional and cultural diversity with national unity
- protecting Canadian identity and sovereignty
- assuring access to social services and quality of life for all
- eliminating inequalities related to race, gender, sexual orientation, age, class, and ethnicity
- protecting the environment
- ensuring the successful functioning of the economy

Citizenship in the Global Context

Canada is part of a global community that is becoming increasingly interconnected and interdependent. Many of the most serious problems facing our world must be dealt with on a global basis. The nation-state—including Canada—is under increasing challenge, externally from the forces of globalization, and internally from demands for more local or regional autonomy.

The world also continues to be characterized by severe disparities between rich and poor countries. This disparity violates the basic principles of social justice and human dignity, and, at the same time, gives rise to dangerous tensions and rivalries. War, terrorism, and violence continue to be a means of addressing internal and international disputes, and, because of developments in weapons technology, are becoming ever more destructive. In these circumstances, Canadian citizens need to think and act globally as well as nationally.

Overview

Environmental Citizenship

Underlying both national and global realities, and the responsibilities they impose on citizens, is the increasing fragility of our natural environment. Quality of life depends upon the sustainability of our environment. This places a particularly important responsibility on citizens, who must ultimately balance the demands of economic growth and high living standards against respect for the environment and the needs of future generations.

IDENTITY AS A CORE CONCEPT IN SOCIAL STUDIES

A strong sense of identity is a necessary foundation for interpersonal relationships, and contributes to students' abilities to participate in their communities as active and responsible citizens. Identities are shaped by many factors, including culture, language, spirituality, beliefs, socio-economic situation, gender, personal characteristics, and time and place. Identity formation is an ongoing process that involves observation, reflection and interaction with others. Individuals affirm who they are by becoming aware of what distinguishes themselves from others as well as what connects them to others.

Identity formation is an ongoing process that involves observation, reflection and interaction with others. Individuals affirm who they are by becoming aware of what distinguishes themselves from others as well as what connects them to others.

Social studies learning provides opportunities for students to develop self-awareness, and to enrich their personal identities and self-esteem. The core concept of identity provides a foundation for students to understand who they are as individuals and as social beings. As they reflect on and express who they are, they build upon their identities as contributing members of groups and communities.

(See previous "Culture-Based Education" statement in Document Adaptation section, and sections Dene Perspective and Inuvialuit / Inuinait Perspective. Note the forthcoming sections, Grade Overview and Cluster Descriptions.)

DIVERSE PERSPECTIVES AS A CORE CONCEPT IN SOCIAL STUDIES

Diversity is a fundamental aspect of human interaction. Living together as members of society requires understanding and appreciation of human diversity and diverse perspectives. Diverse perspectives are reflected throughout the social studies curriculum and enable students to develop an awareness of differing interpretations and worldviews. As they critically consider contemporary and historical ideas, events, and issues from diverse perspectives, students will gain a richer understanding of the complexity of cultures, communities, and societies. This understanding will allow them to interact with others with sensitivity and open-mindedness, and to respect their own and others' ways of seeing the world. As students consider diverse perspectives in their choices, decisions, and actions, they will be better able to live with others in a pluralistic society.

GENERAL LEARNING OUTCOMES

The following six general learning outcomes provide the conceptual structure for social studies from Kindergarten through Grade 6. They are the basis for the specific learning outcomes for each grade.

Culture and Community

Students will explore the influences of culture and community on individuals and societies.

Culture and community play an important role in the development of citizenship and identity. Many factors contribute to a sense of belonging to a culture or community, including shared values, beliefs, traditions, and language. Students will explore the concepts, symbols, and expressions of their own and others' cultural, linguistic, and social communities. They will enhance their understanding of diverse perspectives through an exploration of the ways in which people live together in cultures, groups, communities, and societies. They will explore the connections between culture, community, citizenship, and identity, and will reflect upon their roles as members of groups and communities. Learning outcomes will include concepts such as human interaction, interdependence, and cultural diversity.

The Land: Places and People

Students will explore the dynamic relationships of people with the land, places, and environments.

People exist in dynamic relationships with the land. An exploration of people's relationships with places and environments enables students to understand human dependence and human impact upon the natural environment. Students will explore diverse ways in which spatial and physical characteristics of the environment affect human life, cultures, and societies. They will consider how connections to the land influence their identities and define their roles and responsibilities as citizens, locally, nationally, and globally. Learning outcomes will focus on geographic understanding and skills, and will include concepts such as the relationship between people and the land, sustainability, and stewardship.

Time, Continuity, and Change

Students will explore how people, relationships, events, and ideas of the past shape the present and influence the future.

The past shapes who we are. An exploration of history enables students to appreciate the past, to understand the present, and to live with regard for the future. An important aspect of this process is the investigation and interpretation of Canadian and world history. Students will develop historical consciousness through a consideration of people, relationships, events, ideas, stories, and historical interpretations. They will reflect upon diverse perspective, parallel accounts, oral and social histories and personal narratives through historical inquiry. Through this inquiry students will develop historical understanding, which provides a foundation for citizenship and identity. Learning outcomes will focus on historical thinking and will include concepts such as progress, decline, continuity, causality and change.

Global Interdependence

Students will explore the global interdependence of people, communities, societies, nations, and environments.

People, communities, societies, nations, and environments are interdependent. An exploration of this interdependence will enhance students' global consciousness and encourage them to develop empathy with respect to the human condition. Students will critically consider diverse perspectives and the connections that link local, national, and global issues. This exploration of global connections will enable students to enrich their identities and to engage in active and responsible citizenship. Learning outcomes will focus on human rights and responsibilities, diversity and commonality, quality of life and equity, globalization, international cooperation and conflict, and global environmental concerns.

Power and Authority

Students will explore the processes and structures of power and authority, and their implications for individuals, relationships, communities, and nations.

Power and authority influence all human relationships. Students critically examine the distribution, exercise, and implications of power and authority in everyday life and in formal settings. They consider diverse forms of governance and leadership, and inquire into issues of fairness and equity. This exploration helps students develop a sense of personal empowerment as active democratic citizens. The specific learning outcomes within Power and Authority include concepts such as political structures and decision making, governance, justice, rules and laws, conflict and conflict resolution, and war and peace.

Economics and Resources

Students will explore the distribution of resources and wealth in relation to individuals, communities, and nations.

The management and distribution of resources and wealth have a direct impact on human societies and quality of life. Students explore the effects of economic interdependence on individuals, communities, and nations in the global context. They examine economic factors that affect decision making, the use of resources, and the development of technologies. As students explore diverse perspectives regarding human needs, wants, and quality of life, they critically consider the social and environmental implications of the distribution of resources and technologies, locally, nationally, and globally.

The specific learning outcomes within Economics and Resources include concepts such as trade, commerce, and industry, access to resources, economic disparities, economic systems, and globalization.

SOCIAL STUDIES SKILLS

Social studies skills are grouped into four categories:

- Skills for Active Democratic Citizenship
- Skills for Managing Ideas and Information
- Critical and Creative Thinking Skills
- Communication Skills

Skills for Active Democratic Citizenship

Citizenship skills enable students to develop good relations with others, to work in cooperative ways toward achieving common goals, and to collaborate with others for the well-being of their communities. These interpersonal skills focus on cooperation, conflict resolution, taking responsibility, accepting differences, building consensus, negotiation, collaborative decision making, and learning to deal with dissent and disagreement.

Skills for Managing Information and Ideas

Information-management skills enable students to access, select, organize, and record information and ideas, using a variety of sources, tools, and technologies. These skills include inquiry and research skills that enhance historical and geographical thinking.

Critical and Creative Thinking Skills

Critical and creative thinking skills enable students to make observations and decisions, to solve problems, and to devise forward-thinking strategies. These skills involve making connections among concepts and using a variety of tools. Critical thinking involves the use of criteria and evidence to make reasoned judgments. These judgments include distinguishing fact from opinion and interpretation, evaluating information and ideas, identifying perspectives and bias, and considering the consequences of decisions and actions. Creative thinking emphasizes divergent thinking, the generation of ideas and possibilities, and the exploration of diverse approaches to questions.

Communication Skills

Communication skills enable students to interpret and express ideas clearly and purposefully using a variety of media. These skills include the development of oral, visual, print, and media literacy, and the use of information and communication technologies for the exchange of information and ideas.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES FOR SOCIAL STUDIES LEARNING, TEACHING, AND ASSESSMENT

Social Studies and the Learning Process

Learning in social studies is an active process. Active learning involves the construction of meaning through the interaction of prior knowledge, motivation and purpose, and new experiences. The process of learning varies from one individual to another, and is shaped by a multitude of factors, including personal, social, and cultural influences. Social studies learning is more meaningful when students are

- encouraged to broaden their perspectives through informed and focused interaction with others
- provided with opportunities to reflect critically on their own ideas and attitudes
- valued, respected, and acknowledged as individuals, whatever their situation or background

Social studies knowledge, values, and skills are interdependent aspects of learning, and need to be integrated in the learning process. Meaningful learning in social studies requires both depth and breadth of understanding. This includes the incorporation of basic general knowledge, as well as opportunities for more intensive study of selected topics.

Strategies to support student inquiry and interaction:

- cooperative and peer learning
- interviews
- project-based learning
- structured controversy or debate
- teacher- and student-initiated inquiry and research
- role-play
- sharing circles

Instructional Strategies for Active Learning

Social studies learning can be enhanced by using a variety of settings both in and outside of school, flexible student groupings, and numerous other strategies. A well-balanced social studies program includes individual, collaborative, and teacher-directed learning experiences, and provides students with a variety of conceptual tools and advance organizers.

Effective social studies instruction includes the use of strategies that promote student inquiry and interaction. These strategies include cooperative and peer learning, interviews, project-based learning, structured controversy or debate, teacher- and student-initiated inquiry and research, role-play, and sharing circles.

These types of strategies make learning meaningful by encouraging critical reflection, questioning, and the consideration of diverse points of view.

It is through guided inquiry and interaction—within the school and in the community—that students construct meaning from their individual experiences. Students require opportunities to engage in authentic and relevant community issues and events. It is important that these experiences be integral to social studies learning, and not be contrived.

Active learning is encouraged through resource-based and experiential learning. These include on-the-land experiences, field studies, guided tours, and participation in diverse cultural activities. Social studies teaching offers the ideal opportunity to integrate literature and the arts, and to use information and communication technologies.

Effective practices in social studies actively engage students in democratic processes such as consensus building, collective decision making, student government, class meetings, student-generated topics of study, and school event planning. As well, social studies provides authentic opportunities for home and community involvement.

Active learning includes

- resource-based and experiential learning
- on-the-land experiences
- field studies
- guided tours
- participation in diverse cultural activities
- integrating literature and the arts
- using information and communication technologies

Activities that engage students in democratic processes:

- consensus building
- collective decision making
- student government
- class meetings
- student-generated topics of study
- classroom/school event planning

Resource-based learning

- primary sources
- magazines and journals
- books
- television, radio
- DVDs and CDs
- audio/video tapes
- the Internet
- computer software and databases
- art and artifacts
- simulations and games
- maps
- neighbourhood walks
- museums
- art galleries
- cultural centres
- community sites
- guest speakers
- Elders
- live performances

Resource-Based Learning

Social studies addresses a wide range of issues and topics at every grade. It is a subject that is particularly well-suited to resource-based learning, which moves beyond the single textbook approach and provides students with a variety of information sources. (See Appendix F for a list of recommended learning resources.)

There is a plethora of social studies resources available to teachers and students. These include primary information sources, print media, electronic media, art and artifacts, simulations and games, maps, field trips, as well as knowledgeable individuals from the local community.

Resource-based learning is a student-centred approach that adapts to student needs, interests, abilities, learning styles, and prior knowledge. An environment that is rich in resources allows students to explore and discover as they learn, and to make personal learning choices that are relevant and meaningful.

As our society continues to evolve, so do the roles of teachers and learners. The “sage on the stage” model is giving way to a more flexible model—one in which teachers facilitate the learning process, and students make decisions and assume responsibility for their learning. A resource-based learning approach ultimately helps students manage the information overload that typifies today’s society, and teaches them how to continue their learning outside of the school setting. While the development of fundamental knowledge is still essential in social studies, the student of the 21st century needs the skills to locate, access, and evaluate pertinent information.

Overview

Role of the Social Studies Teacher

Social studies accommodates a variety of teaching styles. Given the political nature of social studies issues and topics, a teacher's personal beliefs and convictions may influence the presentation of content, as well as the selection of teaching strategies and learning resources. Complete neutrality is not always possible, nor necessarily desirable; however, teachers need to be aware of the implications of presenting their own beliefs and perspectives as fact rather than opinion.

Social studies is rich in opportunities to detect and analyze bias through the critical exploration of diverse points of view. When a classroom climate is open and fair, teachers and students together will establish a learning culture that integrates democratic principles and encourages active citizenship. It is important to note that student-centred classrooms are not necessarily democratic classrooms. Even activities that are democratic in nature, such as cooperative learning, can be undemocratic in practice, depending upon how they are used.

Finally, it is essential that teachers be well informed about social studies content and issues, and that they be prepared to provide students with guidance in selecting reliable information sources.

Dealing with Controversial Issues

A fundamental aspect of social studies learning and teaching—at all grade levels—is the consideration of controversial issues—issues that involve ethics, principles, beliefs, and values. Teachers should not avoid controversial issues. Diversity of perspectives, beliefs and values, disagreement, and dissension are all part of living in a democratic society. Furthermore, discussion and debate concerning ethical or existential questions serve to motivate students and make learning more personally meaningful.

The following guidelines will assist teachers in dealing with controversial issues in the classroom:

- approach all issues with sensitivity
- clearly define the issues
- establish a clear purpose for discussions
- establish parameters for discussions
- ensure that the issues do not become personalized or directed at individual students
- protect the interests of individual students by finding out in advance whether any student would be personally affected by the discussion
- exercise flexibility by permitting students to choose alternative assignments
- accept that there may not be a single “right answer” to a question or issue
- respect everyone's right to voice opinions or perspectives
- help students clarify the distinction between informed opinion and bias
- help students seek sufficient and reliable information to support the various perspectives
- allow time to present all relevant perspectives fairly and to reflect upon their validity

SOCIAL STUDIES AS A CURRICULUM OF AND FOR DIVERSITY AND EQUITY

Inclusive Social Studies Classrooms

The NWT social studies classroom plays an important role in helping students become engaged and caring citizens, locally, nationally, and globally. To do so requires teachers to use social studies classrooms as living laboratories for a more equal and just society than the one in which we now live. Schools in general, and the social studies classroom specifically, support the continued development of the multicultural, multiracial, and pluralist democracy that is Canada—a democracy that is capable of addressing the serious social and ecological challenges that face us now, and which threaten our collective future.

The events that take place in our classrooms both shape, and are shaped by larger social currents that define who we are and where we are headed as a society. To be successful, schools, and social studies classrooms in particular, must be guided by democratic social goals and values that celebrate our human diversity and demonstrate a quest for greater equity in our institutions and in society as a whole.

Social studies curriculum and instruction must be both visionary and practical: visionary because we need to go beyond narrow educational goals and look toward our collective future with hope; practical because the work of reshaping educational practice and countering negative social forces and conditions requires daily effort.

Teaching practices, educational activism, and dedication and creativity on the part of teachers and other educational partners are all part of this process. Efforts to transform the social studies classroom need to grow from a common social and pedagogical vision that strives for an inclusive classroom focused on social justice. Curriculum and practice must reflect certain essential characteristics, which are described below.

Inclusive classrooms that are focused on social justice are

- multicultural, equity-focused, anti-biased in nature
- grounded in the lives of students
- culturally sensitive
- critical
- participatory and experimental
- hopeful, joyful, caring, visionary
- academically rigorous
- supportive of students as social activists and engaged citizens

1. Multicultural, equity-focused, and anti-bias in nature

A curriculum grounded in social justice and awareness of social diversity must be inclusive of every student in every classroom. With the increasingly diverse population in our territory and nation, the social studies classroom needs to directly address issues related to race, class, gender, and other aspects of educational equity. We need to do more than simply celebrate diversity. We need to take on the “hard stuff” of exploring why some differences translate into wealth and power, while others become the basis for discrimination and injustice. Social studies classrooms exist in a multicultural and multiracial society, and need to honestly face the truth about our past and present. The often exclusionary, traditional stories of history need to be revised to include the experiences and voices of Aboriginal peoples and people of colour, women, working peoples, and other diverse groups in our society.

2. Grounded in the lives of students

Good teaching begins with respect and concern for children, their innate curiosity, and their capacity to learn. Curriculum needs to be rooted in the real lives and contexts of the students in the classroom. Creating effective learning environments requires that the lives of the students, as well as the topics they are exploring, provide the content of the classroom experience. Students in the NWT also need opportunities to consider and inquire how their lives connect to people, places and events beyond their community.

3. Culturally sensitive

Classrooms that are places for critical teaching and learning are built on the premise that teachers “don’t know it all.” In the NWT many classroom teachers have come to this territory from another part of Canada or the world. Life in the classroom and the community they are now part of presents opportunities for teachers to learn from students and community members, and requires teachers to be good researchers and listeners. Teachers may need to call upon their colleagues, parents and others, including Elders, in order to understand the needs of their students and the communities they seek to serve.

4. Critical

The social studies curriculum should help equip students to engage in dialogue and to challenge the world. From Early Years onwards, students need to develop skills and insights that allow them to pose essential questions. Who makes decisions in society? Who is left out? Who benefits and who suffers? What is fair practice? What is discriminatory or unfair practice? How is change created? Students should have opportunities to examine and question social reality through critiques of media, public policy decisions, foreign policy choices, newspapers, historical accounts, and school life itself. Wherever possible, student learning should encompass issues and problems in the world outside the classroom walls.

5. Participatory and experiential

Student involvement and initiative need to be emphasized; students should not be passive learners. Exploratory and experiential learning approaches, in which students are involved in planning and decision making, allow students to take responsibility for, and to manage, their own learning. Projects, role-plays, mock trials, and other learning activities involve students physically and cognitively. These are all essential to provoke students to develop democratic capacities: to question, to challenge, to make real decisions, and to solve problems collectively.

6. Hopeful, joyful, caring, and visionary

Classrooms in which children feel significant and cared for are at the heart of an inclusive school. Unless students feel safe—emotionally and physically—they will not reveal their true selves or their real thoughts and feelings, and discussions will be artificial and dishonest. Teachers need to design learning experiences that help students learn to trust and care for each other.

7. Academically rigorous

An inclusive classroom focused on social justice equips students with the skills they need to navigate in the world, and to take action to change the world. When students create products for real audiences about significant issues, and discuss big ideas with compassion and intensity, academics come to life.

8. Supportive of students as social activists and engaged citizens

If we want students to see themselves as voices for justice and agents of change, it is important to encourage them to critique the world, and to be willing to act in ways that are meaningful. Part of the role of the social studies teacher is to reinforce the fact that ideas have real consequences and need to be acted upon. Students can draw inspiration from historical and contemporary individuals who struggled for social justice, peace, and human rights. A critical curriculum and classroom should reflect the diversity of people from all cultures and both genders who acted to make a difference, many of whom did so at great sacrifice. Students should feel connected to this legacy of resistance and social justice.

Creating inclusive and critical classrooms is not easy. It is complex and demanding work that requires vision, support, and resources. Sharing experiences with other educators, establishing support networks, and amassing diverse resources are critical components of inclusive classrooms.³

Towards a Pedagogy for Social Justice

A social studies curriculum that advocates social justice is built upon the integration and exploration of issues related to inclusion, diversity, and racism. This approach requires a clear and well-developed understanding of multicultural/anti-racist teaching approaches. It should not be assumed that simply providing students with learning resources that are “multicultural” or that deal with issues of inequality or diversity is sufficient to create an inclusive social studies classroom. To have a positive effect, as well as an anti-racist/anti-bias impact on the classroom, multicultural materials need to be part of meaningful learning experiences that encourage students to critically explore and analyze the significance of the issues discussed or information presented, personally and collectively.

The quotation that follows illustrates the importance of anti-racism pedagogy in the use of multicultural resources in the classroom, and in the planning and implementation of learning activities. It is critical that educators be clear how a specific learning resource and related activities fit into their plan for the year and the anti-racism objectives that have been established.

“It should be remembered that multicultural curriculum can be taught in a traditional and racist way. The way out of this dilemma is through the intervention of anti-racist teaching. Anti-racist teaching would incorporate ‘education’ which is multicultural while the ‘teaching’ would be anti-racist. In this context, anti-racist teaching is seen as coming about through a teacher with the ‘right’ attitude, the appropriate knowledge, and the necessary skills to bring about learning that that will challenge racism and change the bias of the traditional ethnocentric and biased education to which we are accustomed in Canada.” (Black Learners Advisory Committee [BLAC] Report on Education, December 1994, Nova Scotia)

Overview

The Transformative Curriculum: Education for Social Justice

An anti-racist pedagogy may be conceptualized as being education for change, social justice, or action. James Banks provides a conceptual model for analyzing the level of integration of multicultural content into the curriculum, which highlights the importance of a social action approach. In his perspective, a Transformation or Social Action Approach is essential if we wish to meaningfully address issues of diversity and inequality in the social studies classroom and in our schools.

Levels of Integration of Multicultural Content

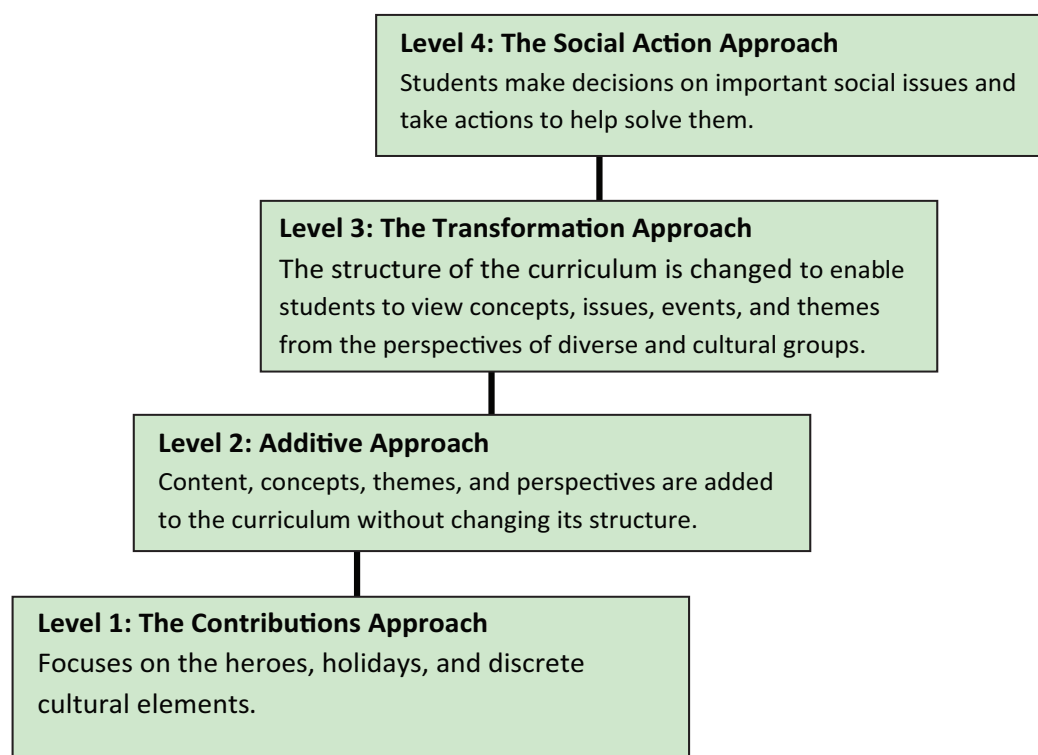

Figure 1: From “Approaches to Multicultural Curriculum Reform” by James A. Banks. In Multicultural Education: Issues and Perspectives, J. Banks and C. Banks (Eds.).

Diversity and Inequity: The Historical Context

It is important that educators develop an informed understanding of the historical development of Canadian society and the history of diversity and inequality. Traditional approaches to Canadian history have often excluded or marginalized the experiences and perspectives of many diverse groups. Therefore, it is critical that educators broaden their understanding of history in a Canadian and international context.

The experiences of marginalized groups in Canada share many similarities with marginalized groups in other places. It is important to explore and critically consider these parallels. Furthermore, it is important to connect historical experiences to contemporary social conditions, such as continued inequities in employment, evidence of bias in medical research, attitudes towards interracial or same-sex marriages, the prevalence of negative stereotypes in media, and so on.

Identity, Culture, and Race

Educators also need to consider the social dynamics and patterns of intercultural interaction in the classroom in developing inclusive, multicultural, and pro-social justice learning experiences. The ethnocultural identity and self-concept of students play an important role in determining their response and willingness to engage in meaningful learning experiences related to diversity. Social and ethnocultural identity is characterized by a number of factors, including the following:

- An individual's identity is complex and composed of various dimensions.
- Every individual has multiple identities, with ethnicity, class, gender, language, religion, racial origins, political beliefs, and other factors defining who we are.
- Not all factors have the same impact on our identity, and their relevance may change according to personal and social conditions and social context.
- Race, while it is a socially constructed concept, forms part of our sense of identity.
- Racial identity development is the result of the racialization of society, and is a complex and dynamic phenomenon.

Theories regarding the process of achieving an anti-racist group identity are a useful tool to guide exploration of the impact of race and racism in our classrooms. These theories also serve to guide educators in defining the objectives of anti-racism education. Ideally, schools should facilitate the movement of students to the highest level of anti-racist group identity (see below).

Overview

Towards an Inclusive and Anti-Bias Identity

The process of undoing the profound impact of racism and other forms of discrimination and marginalization is a complex journey—a journey towards an inclusive and anti-bias identity. Psychologists researching race and identity issues have theorized that this journey may take different paths or stages of development for different groups, as members of these groups have been affected in differing ways by racism and discrimination.

Research suggests that people undergo a series of life transformations or stages of identity formation in terms of their self-concept and group identity. These stages of social identity formation are not inevitable, static, nor are they achieved for life. Life circumstances and experiences precipitate and support change either towards or away from anti-racism consciousness and behaviour. Alternatively, individuals may remain fixated at a particular stage of ethnic and group consciousness (Derman-Sparks et al., 1997).

Towards an Anti-Bias/Anti-Racist Identity

William Cross's (1991) model for the stages of Black identity development reflects the African American experience, but is relevant in a Canadian and NWT context. His model of the resocialization experience has five distinct stages of identity development: Pre-encounter, Encounter, Immersion/Emersion, Internalization, and Internalization-Commitment.

In Cross's conceptual framework, individuals move from a state of unawareness of racism and discrimination to one of total awareness and social activism, known as the Internalization-Commitment stage. This final stage parallels Banks' idea of the global ethnic identity, and is a fully developed anti-racist group identity. An individual at this stage is a social activist who recognizes the need for continuous efforts to challenge inequality in society on several fronts, and seeks to collaborate with others in meaningful social action.

Helms (1990) has taken a similar and comprehensive examination of the stages of white/dominant group identity development. Helms identifies the tendency of dominant group members in society to deny that their racial identity has any significance, preferring to view themselves as individuals and, consequently, not responsible for the perpetuation of a racist system.

Helms' model of identity development is based on six distinct stages: Contact, Disintegration, Immersion/Emersion, Reintegration, Pseudo-Independent, Immersion/Emersion, and Autonomy. Individuals in this framework, like Cross's, move from a stage of total ignorance to one of total awareness and engagement in social activism. In the final stage of identity, Autonomy, individuals are self-directed and self-actualized activists who join with exploited groups to change the racist system.

Both researchers see the highest form of identity formation to be one where individuals are aware of the realities of inequities in society and the reality of racism, coupled with the desire to work with others for change and meaningful social action.

Applying Racial Identity Development Concepts in the Classroom

There is a great deal of significance to identity formation for educators involved in anti-bias/anti-racism education within the social studies classroom. First, the two models detailed above present a framework for conceptualizing learning outcomes or objectives for anti-bias/anti-racist education in a school setting. Ideally, school experiences and learning activities will stimulate sustained exploration and development of students' sense of identity, and encourage movement towards an anti-racist racial identity for all students. To achieve this, there needs to be a good understanding of both racism and of anti-racist educational practices.

Secondly, the two models provide tools to assist teachers in planning educational experiences for students. The stages students are at in their racial identity development affect how they interact with other students, and how they respond to learning experiences dealing with diversity or racism. Teachers may wish to reflect on the cultural composition of their classrooms and individual student sense of identity when planning learning activities. This reflection will provide insight as to how students may respond to multicultural learning resources, or educational activities related to diversity issues. It may also identify potential problems that may arise as a result of students being at different stages of identity development.

Finally, the models provide a tool for self-reflection and analysis, encouraging teachers to reflect on issues of race and power. For example, teachers may ask themselves:

- What stage am I at in my personal identity formation?
- How will my stage of identity formation affect my teaching of anti-bias/anti-racist content and issues?
- What is my pattern of interaction and relationships with people of diverse origins and disadvantaged groups, and how does this relate to my current stage of identity development?

Isolation and Identity

The exploration of Canadian and world history, and issues related to discrimination may be particularly challenging for students of marginalized or minority groups. A student may find herself or himself as the only one, or one of a small group, in an otherwise relatively homogeneous classroom setting. Such students may be at different stages of social or ethnic identity, and the overall classroom attitude and awareness of racism will greatly affect the dynamics in the classroom. It is important for teachers to recognize that

- racism and other forms of discrimination adversely affect student involvement in the classroom.
- experiences with racism and other forms of discrimination affect students' lives and the lives of their family members.

Overview

- dealing with issues of race and racism and other issues of bias and discrimination is a deeply personal and emotional experience that may stimulate recall of repressed memories or emotions.
- for many students of visible minority origins, and other students of diverse origins, a sense of isolation or alienation is not uncommon.
- in such situations, even if the intent is anti-bias in nature, raising issues of racism and inequality in a classroom presents a challenge for most students. Very often students will feel as if “all eyes” are on them when racial incidents occur, racist language is expressed, or other issues related to prejudice and discrimination are discussed.
- being of visible minority origins may be an experience in diversity itself. Students are often of interracial and intercultural backgrounds. Teachers need to be sensitive to students’ personal definitions of their “identity” and group membership.
- students may not be comfortable with the role of representing or “speaking for” their particular cultural group. Depending on personal circumstances and social conditions, students may just be beginning, or have yet to begin, to explore their cultural origins.

This discussion of issues related to identity illustrates the complexity of intercultural and interracial dynamics in the classroom and society. It points to the need to carefully consider these dynamics when introducing challenging learning experiences. Most importantly, it highlights the need to have a clear and well-defined anti-bias/anti-racist teaching approach. It is about education for empowerment; it is about turning dreams into reality.

Strategies to Develop Positive Attitudes towards Diversity

- Initiate educational activities and discussions to build a positive racial and/or cultural self-identity.
- Initiate activities and discussions to develop positive attitudes toward diverse racial/cultural groups—encourage the exploration of groups different from students’ own reference groups.
- Always answer student questions about race, ethnicity, and cultures when questions are asked.
- Listen carefully and in a relaxed manner to student questions and comments. Be sure to understand what a student means and wants to know.
- Pay attention to feelings.
- Provide truthful information appropriate to students’ level of understanding.
- Help students recognize racial, cultural, social, and other stereotypes.
- Encourage students to challenge racism and other forms of discrimination by being a positive role model and displaying inclusive attitudes and behaviours.
- Cultivate understanding that racism and other forms of discrimination do not have to be a permanent condition—that people are working together for positive change.
- Remember that learning about racial and cultural identities is a lifelong process.

(Council for Interracial Books for Children, 1980)

Points to Consider When Using Multicultural Resources in the Classroom

- 1. Remember that context is important when using literature or media that deal with issues of diversity and of inequality.
 - How does the resource fit into the yearly plan or the curriculum?
 - Is the school environment positive and open to diversity?
 - What is the classroom composition in terms of diversity? How may this affect classroom dynamics?
 - Are students from the cultural backgrounds that are featured in the resource represented in the classroom? Is there a history of positive interaction between students of diverse cultural and racial origins?
 - What is the relationship and pattern of interaction between the teacher and minority students in the classroom? How may this affect the use of the resource in a classroom setting?
 - Is multicultural literature frequently used in the school and throughout various subject areas?
- 2. What was the rationale for choosing the resources to be used?
 - Were parents or community group members involved in the selection of the resources?
 - Has the impact of the resource on readers of different experiences and perspectives been considered?
 - Have questions of voice and authenticity been considered?
 - Have supplementary or complementary materials been considered?
- 3. Has the stage been set for the introduction of the resource, including its content and major themes?
 - Is the teacher sufficiently knowledgeable about the content and the historical context of the resource?
 - Are students sufficiently knowledgeable of the historical and social context addressed in the resource?
 - Have students explored issues related to the use of problematic terms and references made in the resource?
 - Have minority students and parents been consulted with respect to planned learning activities? Have they been given an opportunity to participate or to suggest strategies for the effective use of the resource?
- 4. Does the classroom experience lend itself to anti-bias/anti-racist learning?
 - Are students encouraged to critically analyze the resource and its significance in a contemporary setting?
 - Have arrangements been made to monitor the impact of the resource on students in the classroom, and to deal with issues as they arise?
 - Do the classroom activities allow students to voice their experiences, feelings, and ideas? Are minority students' experiences, feelings, and ideas validated, or are they ignored and silenced?
 - Are students encouraged to explore the significance of the resource in terms of their own lives and social action?
 - Do classroom experiences provide an opportunity for students to interact and connect with the people or groups featured in the resource?

Overview

- Do students have a voice in the classroom? Are connections made to other groups and their experiences in a way that encourages students to understand similarities and differences?
- Has the use of additional resources that give a more complete picture been considered?

5. How does the resource or issue studied relate to other aspects of the curriculum and school experience?

- Have provisions been made to connect the issues and experiences explored to curricular learning outcomes?
- Is the impact of the resource on students, and on their interactions in the classroom, being monitored?
- Have students been given opportunities to reflect on learning experiences, and to share their thoughts and feelings?
- Have plans been made to provide students with opportunities to celebrate their diversity and unity with each other, their parents, and their community?

SOCIAL STUDIES AND CLASSROOM-BASED ASSESSMENT

Purpose of Assessment

The purpose of classroom-based assessment is to enhance student learning. Research continues to demonstrate that ongoing formative assessment contributes more significantly to learning than the more traditional focus on summative assessment, which is often referred to as assessment of learning. Formative assessment, also described as assessment for learning and/or assessment as learning, is most effective when it involves both the student and the teacher, and takes place throughout the learning process.

Each type of assessment serves its own purpose and contributes to student success in social studies. Classroom-based assessment for learning allows students and teachers to determine what students have learned, and what they need to learn next. Students need frequent opportunities for meaningful and relevant feedback. Descriptive or narrative feedback—that which includes analytical questions and constructive comments—provides information to students that they may use to adjust their learning processes, and is more helpful to them than a numerical or alphabetical grade. Assessment that is ongoing and meaningful provides opportunities for students to become reflective learners—to synthesize their learning, to solve problems, to apply their learning in authentic situations, and to better understand their learning processes—as well as opportunities for teachers to become reflective practitioners. Assessment of learning that takes place at the end of a cluster, or at the end of a year, provides important information about student progress and achievement, as well as instructional effectiveness. This information is usually shared with parents via report cards.

It is important that the purpose of assessment (for or of), as well as how assessment information will be used, is clear to both teachers and students. With a clearly understood purpose, students are encouraged to take more responsibility for their learning, and are better able to focus their efforts, while teachers can better select the instruction and assessment strategies and student learning resources that will improve student achievement.

Activating: How will students be prepared for learning?

Acquiring: What strategies facilitate learning for groups and individuals?

Applying: How will students demonstrate their understanding?

Assessment and the Stages of Learning

Much of what goes on in classrooms can be described as assessment, and assessment takes place in each stage of learning, including activating, acquiring, and applying. Assessment at each stage benefits both students and teachers.

Assessment during the activating stage prepares both teachers and students for the learning process, identifying gaps and strengths in student prior knowledge, and informing future instruction.

Assessment during the acquiring stage provides feedback as learning takes place, and allows teachers and students to make adjustments to strategies and activities. Well-timed, meaningful feedback as they are learning helps students improve the quality of their work and reach their learning goals. Assessment at this stage also allows for the gathering of evidence of student learning.

Assessment during the applying stage focuses on students using new understandings in meaningful and authentic ways. Authentic tasks are those that have worthwhile purposes and replicate as closely as possible the context in which knowledge, values, or skills will be applied beyond the classroom. Ideally, students should demonstrate their learning, and the relevance and importance of their learning, for real audiences and real purposes.

Information gathered at each of the three stages of learning is useful for teacher and student reflection regarding changes and adaptations to learning strategies, and in the selection of student learning resources. (See Figure 2: Assessment at Different Stages of Learning.)

Collecting Assessment Information

Assessment of student learning is a complex and interactive process. At various times it involves teacher and/or student decision making, student self- and peer assessment, teacher observation of students, student-teacher dialogue, student reflection, and teacher reflection. Each stage of learning and assessment generates information about student needs, growth, and achievement, as well as information related to teaching and learning strategies and the appropriateness of student learning resources.

Collecting information about student learning helps build a positive learning environment and contributes to positive classroom relationships. Teachers use information they gather about their students to scaffold instruction, and to make decisions about the strategies and learning resources that will contribute to successful student learning. When assessment information is shared with students, they are better able to manage and take responsibility for their own learning—setting goals and identifying how they will achieve those goals.

Teachers learn about student progress through moment-by-moment observation of students in action, as well as through more formal activities, including projects, performances, tests, and examinations. Teachers cannot possibly assess all students, all of the time, and should consider a number of factors when determining how to focus their assessment observations. These factors include, among others, the nature of the learning outcomes, the structure of the learning activity (e.g., individual, small group, whole class), the time of year, and the stage of student development. Teachers may choose to focus assessment observation on one or two students or a small group at any one time to monitor their growth and progress at different stages of their learning.

No matter what the type, an assessment activity should be based on criteria that are shared with students before they engage in learning. As well, having students participate in constructing assessment criteria further contributes to their success. When students know in advance what is to be assessed, and when their performances are compared to pre-determined criteria (and to their prior performances), students are better able to concentrate their efforts and focus their learning.

Additionally, students need to be aware of what success looks like. Providing students with exemplars from previous years provides them with a model to strive toward, and assists them in reaching their learning goals.

Overview

Assessment Tools and Strategies

Just as diverse instructional strategies are important, so too are a variety of assessment tools and strategies. There are three types of learning outcomes in social studies—knowledge, values, and skills—and assessment needs to be congruent with each type of learning.

- Assessing Knowledge: Social studies places significant emphasis on the acquisition of knowledge. True understanding and appreciation of social studies issues does not occur if students simply memorize and recall information. Rather, students are encouraged to use the knowledge they acquire to synthesize and apply new understandings, and to demonstrate evidence of their learning.
- Assessing Skills: The assessment of social studies skills and processes requires different strategies than the assessment of knowledge. Since skill development is ongoing, students continue to practise skills from cluster to cluster and throughout the year. Skills are best assessed by observing students in action, by discussing their learning strategies during conferences and interviews, and by gathering data from student reflections and self-assessments.
- Assessing Values: Values are implicit in what students say and do, and are not always measurable in the same way that knowledge outcomes are measurable. Similar to skills, values are best assessed by observing students in action, looking for behavioural indicators as expressions of student values, and engaging students in critical dialogue.

A significant aspect of social studies is the development of values related to active democratic citizenship. The values related to citizenship do not apply solely within the confines of the classroom; a number of social studies learning outcomes refer to student attitudes and behaviours in groups and communities beyond the school. In those cases, assessment will include not only student self-assessment, but self-reporting.

In general, there are three main sources for teachers to gather student assessment evidence:

- observations of student learning (including student's interactions with peers)
- observation and evaluation of student products and performances
- one-to-one conversations with students about their learning, including information gathered from self- and peer assessment

A broad range of tools and strategies are available to teachers to assess social studies learning. These include student portfolios, interviews, individual and group inquiry and research, journals, role-play and oral presentations, tests, hands-on projects, teacher observation checklists, peer assessment, and self-assessment.

Assessment tools and strategies:

- student portfolios
- interviews
- individual and group inquiry and research
- journals
- role-play
- oral presentations
- tests
- hands-on projects
- teacher observation checklists
- peer assessment
- self-assessment

The most important aspect of each of these strategies is regular dialogue with students about their learning: asking them questions about their observations and conclusions as they learn, and stimulating and prompting them to higher levels of thinking and learning.

When teachers use a variety of assessment tools and strategies over a period of time, student learning patterns begin to emerge. Observation and knowledge of these patterns is necessary for planning effective instruction and for successful learning.

Student portfolios are a particularly useful approach in the assessment of social studies learning. Portfolios help teachers determine the degree to which students have mastered learning. The contents of student portfolios represent student growth and progress, and, when they are accompanied by interviews with students about their learning, provide valuable assessment information for communication to students, parents, and administrators.

Language to encourage self-assessment

Students

- I think I need to...
- I also want to...
- I was thinking that...
- I wonder...
- Next time I would...

Teachers

- Why did you choose to...?
- What options did you consider...?
- What changed in your thinking?

Assessment of learning is also important. However, it must be noted that assessment information that is gathered at the end of a cluster will not always be completely summative in nature. Social studies learning outcomes—particularly skills outcomes that continue to develop through the year—are often interconnected, practised, and reinforced throughout every cluster. Therefore, the level of growth that students demonstrate at various times during the year may not adequately reflect their progress at the end of the year. Student achievement may need to be reviewed at year’s end, and “summative” assessments that were made earlier may need to be revised.

Teachers may wish to consider end-of-cluster assessments as progress reports rather than final assessments, and decide to provide students with additional opportunities to demonstrate their learning. End-of-year assessment, similar to assessment that takes place at the end of every cluster, should allow students to make connections in their learnings and to reflect on the applications of this new knowledge and understanding in their lives.

Self-Assessment and Reflection

Classroom-based assessment provides opportunities for both students and teachers to reflect on, and to enhance, the learning process.

When students are empowered to engage in self-assessment and reflection, they make better choices and assume more responsibility for their learning. Self-assessment significantly increases learning by promoting critical

Overview

Student autonomy and responsibility is enhanced when students

- identify their learning goals
- help create assessment criteria
- select products and performances for their portfolios to demonstrate their learning
- engage in peer assessment
- are provided with self-assessment tools (e.g., checklists, learning logs, reflection journals, portfolios)

thinking and by allowing students to take ownership of their learning. They are better able to observe and analyze patterns in their thinking, to appraise their strengths, and to set realistic goals for themselves.

As teachers engage in regular conversations with students about their learning, teachers gain essential information to plan for the needs of individual learners.

Assessment, including student self-assessment, is facilitated when students are made to feel safe, secure, involved, and that their individual learning needs are being met. When assessment is equitable (i.e., focused on student growth and progress instead of student deficits, and not used for discipline or classroom control), student autonomy, responsibility, and motivation greatly increase. Students need to be encouraged to do their best as they learn, but also to take risks, and to not be afraid of making mistakes.

Self-assessment depends on student empowerment. Empowerment needs to begin before any actual learning takes place, and continue through to the summative assessment stage.

Students who are empowered and autonomous learners are involved in the initial decision making about learning, expressing ideas about what and how they will learn. They plan their personal learning goals, decide how they will demonstrate their learning, and select products and performances for their portfolios, all in collaboration with their peers and/or teachers. Throughout the process, teachers engage students in critical dialogue about their decisions and their progress. Figure 3: Student Empowerment in the Learning Process illustrates this critical dialogue.

Teacher Reflection

Teacher reflection is also essential to effective pedagogy, and there is no teaching tool or strategy more important than critical consciousness. As teachers assess and reflect on their instructional practices, and as they engage students in dialogue about learning, they become aware of student needs and are better able to adjust planning and teaching—before, during, and after learning.

Before learning begins, teachers engage students in strategies to activate learning. This provides opportunities for teachers to observe students, to assess their prior knowledge, and to make initial adjustments to the learning process that is about to begin.

Teacher as reflective practitioner

- Which strategies best met the needs of the group? Of individuals?
- How did the students respond?
- What will I change? add? delete?

Once learning is underway, teachers continuously observe students and engage them in dialogue about their learning. They are aware of changing student needs, and adapt and adjust learning strategies as needed.

Finally, when all of the learning and assessing activities have been completed, teachers critically reflect on the whole learning process, evaluating their strategies and approaches, and deciding what changes need to be made for next time.

A Social Studies Model for Classroom-Based Assessment

The assessment model presented in this document provides a series of processes and tools to facilitate classroom-based assessment.

In each grade, the knowledge, values, and skills learning outcomes have been organized into thematic groups referred to as clusters; there are three to five clusters in each grade. Each cluster is further divided into learning experiences, where a small number of related learning outcomes are grouped together. Each learning experience provides a series of activating, acquiring, and applying strategies.

In this model, assessment tools and strategies have been created for use

- at the beginning of each cluster
- within each learning experience
- at the end of each cluster

Overview

The following assessment strategies and tools are referenced at the beginning of each cluster. The reproducible charts are found in Appendix C.

- Skills Progress Chart: This teacher tool lists every skills learning outcome for a particular grade. It is intended to monitor individual student or classwide progress related to skills in each cluster and throughout the grade (Appendix C).
- Student Portfolio Tracking Chart: This chart is intended for student use, and lists the titles of each learning experience within a cluster. Students use the chart to track the portfolio selections from each learning experience they will use to demonstrate their learning at the end of the cluster (Appendix C).
- Engaging Students in the Cluster: This section provides suggestions to teachers to activate a cluster, prior to engaging students in learning experiences. These activities are intended to stimulate student interest, and to provide opportunities for teachers to assess student prior knowledge.

The following assessment tools are included within every learning experience:

Skills Set: This icon is attached to every strategy in a learning experience, and includes an appendix reference. Appendix A lists the skills learning outcomes that may be targeted for assessment, and provides assessment suggestions.

Suggested Portfolio Selections: Selected strategies in each learning experience are identified with this icon, indicating that the strategy may result in the creation of products, processes, or performances for inclusion in student portfolios. (See the description of Student Portfolio Tracking Chart above.)

A portfolio is a purposeful collection of work over time that shows the evidence of a student's knowledge and understanding. Selection is made with regard to student learning goals and/or criteria, and involves self-assessment and reflection. Portfolios show growth and the achievement of learning outcomes.

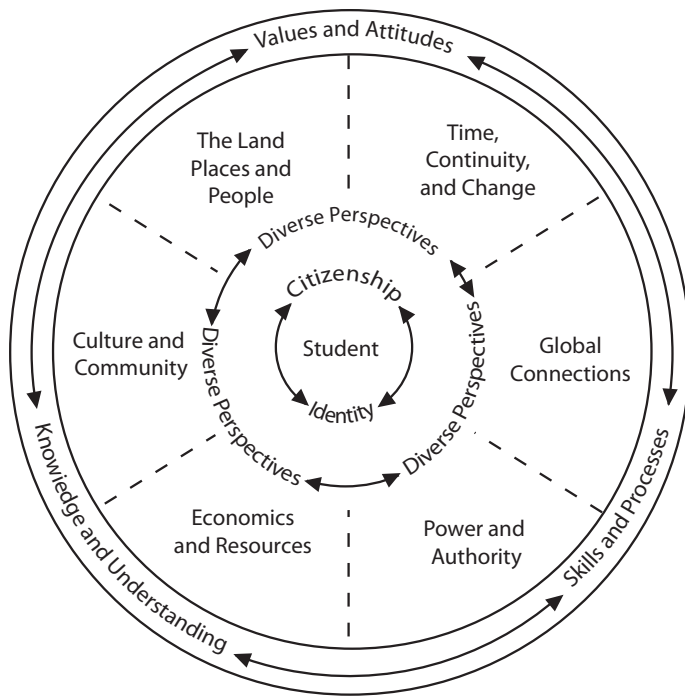

The following assessment tool appears at the end of every cluster:

- Connecting and Reflecting: Every cluster ends with an assessment activity entitled Connecting and Reflecting. During this activity, students review their cluster portfolio selections to synthesize their learnings throughout the cluster, and reflect on the implications of those learnings in their daily lives as citizens of their school, their local community, of Canada, or the world. This end-of-cluster activity is an important culminating step. It provides information to both teachers and students about student achievement regarding the essential ideas and understandings of the cluster.

Conceptual Map

The student learning outcomes presented in this document address the foundation skill areas and essential elements common to all NWT social studies curricula. The following conceptual map illustrates the foundation skill areas, essential elements, and other key components upon which the NWT social studies curriculum is based.

Essential Elements to Be Integrated into NWT Curricula

- Resource-Based Learning
- Differentiated Instruction
- Anti-Racist/Anti-Bias Education
- Information Communication Technology
- Career Development
- Culture-Based Education
- English Language Arts

DOCUMENT COMPONENTS

Core Concepts

As illustrated in the preceding Conceptual Map, the core concepts of citizenship and identity provide a focus for social studies learning at all grades. Citizenship and identity knowledge, values, and skills learning outcomes are included in each grade.

Diverse Perspectives

The concept of diversity is integrated throughout the social studies curriculum. Knowledge and values learning outcomes are inclusive of diverse perspectives, and encourage critical consideration of differing viewpoints as students engage in purposeful dialogue with others.

General and Specific Learning Outcomes

This document contains both general and specific learning outcomes. The general learning outcomes are broad statements that provide a conceptual structure for social studies, and are the basis for the specific learning outcomes in each grade. Specific learning outcomes are statements that describe the skills, knowledge, and values that students are expected to achieve in each grade. These three types of specific learning outcomes are interdependent and are intended to be integrated throughout the social studies learning process.

The six general learning outcomes, which are the basis for the specific learning outcomes in each grade, are:

- Culture and Community: Students will explore the influences of culture and community on individuals and societies.
- The Land: Places and People: Students will explore the dynamic relationships of people with the land, places, and environments.
- Time, Continuity, and Change: Students will explore how people, relationships, events, and ideas of the past shape the present and influence.
- Global Interdependence: Students will explore the global interdependence of people, communities, societies, nations, and environments.
- Power and Authority: Students will explore the processes and structures of power and authority, and their implications for individuals, relationships, communities, and nations.
- Economics and Resources: Students will explore the distribution of resources and wealth in relation to individuals, communities, and nations.

Skills Learning Outcomes

Social studies involves the development of discipline-related skills, including inquiry and research skills and methods, historical thinking, and geographic thinking. Social studies provides students with opportunities to refine the skills and competencies developed in other subject areas, such as skills in communication and media literacy, collaboration and cooperation, critical and creative thinking, problem solving, and decision making. As students apply these skills to complex social studies problems that may or may not have solutions, they develop competencies integral to active democratic citizenship.

Skills learning outcomes are organized into four categories:

- Skills for Active Democratic Citizenship
- Skills for Managing Information and Ideas
- Critical and Creative Thinking Skills
- Communication Skills

In this document, a list of grade-specific skills appears at the beginning of the grade description. The skills are also integrated in each learning activity in every grade.

A continuum of social studies skills for Kindergarten to Grade 4 is found in Appendix E.

Knowledge and Values Learning Outcomes

Knowledge learning outcomes and values learning outcomes are intended to complement one another. Both are presented under each of the six general learning outcomes at the beginning of a grade, and are also grouped according to essential ideas within the learning experiences.

Distinctive Learning Outcomes

Some specific learning outcomes are designated as distinctive learning outcomes for Aboriginal (First Nations, Inuit, and Métis) or francophone students. Distinctive learning outcomes complement the specific learning outcomes. They are intended to enhance the development of language, identity, culture, and community for Aboriginal and francophone students.

- Distinctive learning outcomes for Aboriginal students are intended for First Nations, Inuit, or Métis students in educational settings that include locally controlled First Nations schools, or settings where there are Aboriginal students, and where the school or school division has agreed that the distinctive learning outcomes be addressed. It is advisable that teachers selected to address the distinctive learning outcomes have a background in Aboriginal culture.
- Distinctive learning outcomes for francophone students are intended for students enrolled in schools where francophone programming has been developed within the context of Section 23 of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Overview

DOCUMENT STRUCTURE

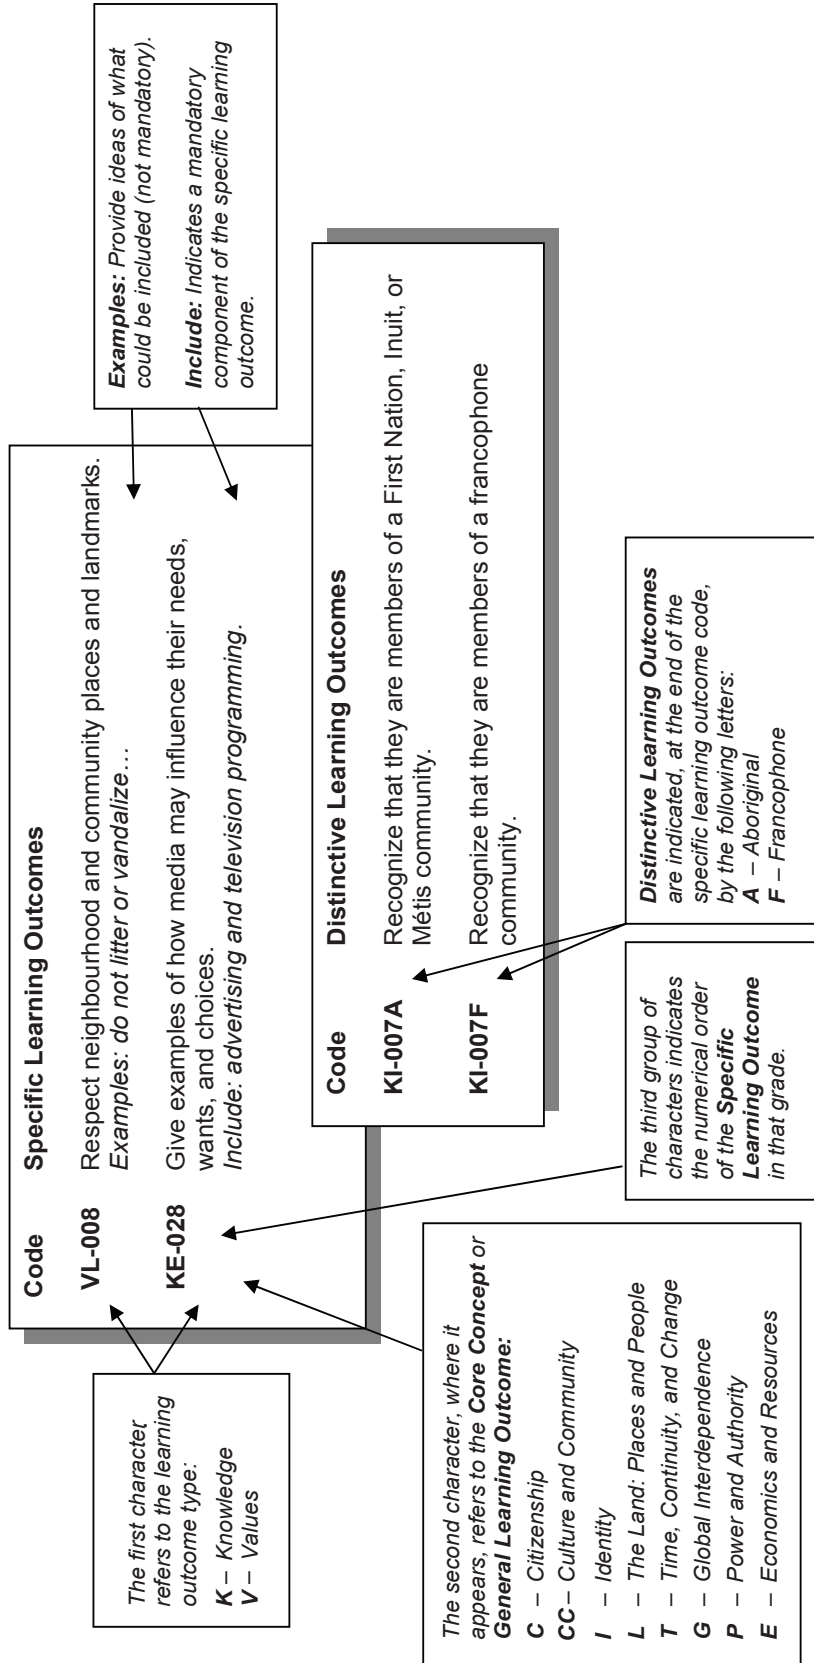

This document contains the following components:

- Grade Overview: A brief description of the content and focus of a given grade is presented in the grade overview.
- Cluster Descriptions: The knowledge and values learning outcomes are organized into thematic groups referred to as clusters. The focus of each cluster is briefly described in the cluster descriptor.
- Specific Learning Outcomes: Skills, knowledge, and values specific learning outcomes are presented in the following order:
 - Skills: The skills learning outcomes are organized in four categories, and intended to be integrated through each cluster.
 - Knowledge and Values: The knowledge and values specific learning outcomes are presented under the Core Concept: Citizenship, and under each of the six general learning outcomes.
 - Cluster/Learning Experiences Overview: The knowledge and values learning outcomes within each cluster have been divided into smaller groups of related outcomes, referred to as learning experiences. The overview page presents each learning experience with the related knowledge and values learning outcomes.
- Learning Experiences: Each learning experience provides a series of activating, acquiring, and applying strategies to address related knowledge and values learning outcomes, and contains the following components:
 - Skills Progress Chart (teacher tracking tool)
 - Student Portfolio Tracking Chart (student tool)
 - Engaging Students in the Cluster (strategies to activate the cluster)
 - Skills Set (an icon indicating the skills targeted in the learning activity)
 - Suggested Student Portfolio Selections (an icon indicating that a strategy may result in the creation of products, processes, or performances for inclusion in student portfolios)
 - Knowledge and Values Learning Outcomes (targeted outcomes)
 - Description of the Learning Experience
 - Vocabulary List
 - Connecting and Reflecting (end-of-cluster summative assessment activity)

Description of the Learning Experience

People everywhere have the same needs, although they may have different ways of meeting them. Students review the concept of needs and explore how people meet their needs in other places.

Note: Students focussed on basic needs in K.1.2, Cluster 1, Learning Experience 2. (See page 62.)

Note: Some of the activities in this learning experience may require teacher sensitivity to student cultural background and/or family situations.

Vocabulary: need, want, world, shelter (See Appendix D for Vocabulary Strategies.)

Grade Overview

GRADE 2 students explore life in Canada, beginning with a study of their own community and moving outward to other communities. They become aware of their Canadian heritage as they discover stories of their local community's past and present. They explore ways in which people interact with the natural environment and come to understand the nature of communities. Students enhance their awareness of the cultural and geographic diversity of Canada through the study of an Aboriginal community in southern Canada and one other Canadian community. Through this exploration, students discover the diversity and commonalities that link Canadian communities.

The Drum

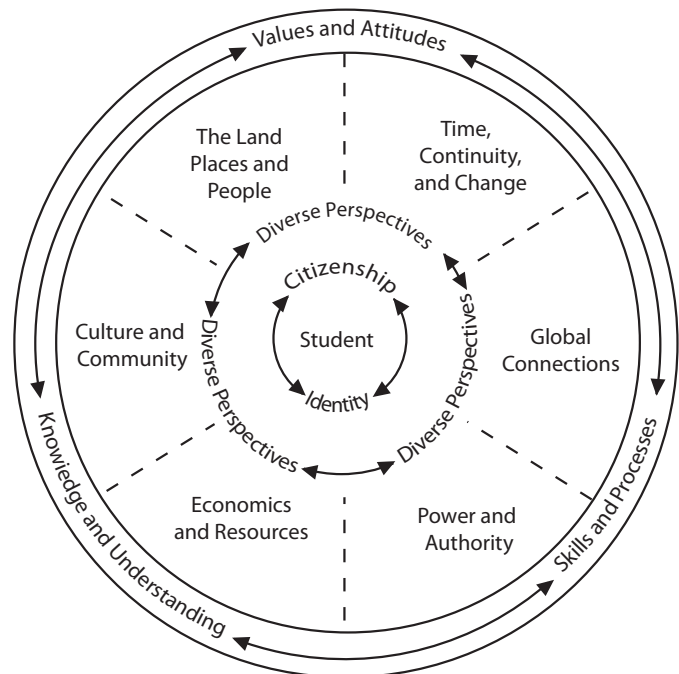

It is said that the drum is the Dene culture.

The drum represents unity of self, others, the spiritual world and land.

The Dene must grasp the drum and be in respectful relationship with themselves, with others and with Mother Earth...

P.p xvii of Dene Kede

In our Aboriginal worldview the “drum” in its circular shape best symbolizes our connectedness to all existence of Mother Earth. The two strings running across the drum, side by side, symbolizes working as one yet side by side with another; working as a community, yet as a nation; as well as reciprocity between the young and the old. A young child must not only begin learning about the harmony within oneself but also to begin to learn to know and feel the gratitude of belonging. It prepares a child to respect all creatures and the natural laws that Mother Earth offers across our vast land from sunrise to sunset.

Inuvialuit and Inuinait Grade 2 students explore people and how they live in Canada. They may decide to connect with a cultural group in Canada to better understand how they live. Throughout this exploration, students should be encouraged to identify similarities and differences within these groups, but not necessarily focus from a comparative perspective. Rather, students understand they have a way of life that may differ from others depending on the cultural group/s, population, accessibility, weather, and land formation. This provides an opportunity for the students to better understand how those communities/cities interact with their environment and begin understanding that there are many types of communities in Canada.

Cluster Descriptions

Cluster 1: Our Local Community

Students focus on various aspects of communities. They locate their local communities on a map and explore the influence of the natural environment, important people and leaders, and cultural groups in their communities. Through stories of their local community, past and present, students become aware of their identity and heritage. They also consider their personal contributions to leadership and peaceful conflict resolution.

Inuvialuit and Inuinait Students

Students focus on how they describe their community. They learn to place their community on a map. They learn how their community functions and who are considered leaders in their community. They understand there may be different cultural groups within their community. Students dialogue to understand that people have similarities in all cultural groups and focus on relating to and respecting these cultural groups. Students discuss what people do in times of crisis in their community. They learn safety measures for these times. They discuss how their activities are influenced by the seasons, the weather, the land and the water. Through stories and information, students enhance their identity, culture, values and beliefs to where they belong. By learning about their whole community, students will understand that personal contributions to the community will enrich leadership skills and provide opportunities for problem solving and conflict resolutions.

Cluster 2: Communities in Canada

Students enhance their awareness of the cultural and geographic diversity of Canada through the study of an Aboriginal community in southern Canada and one other Canadian community. They explore natural and constructed features of communities and examine concepts related to natural resources, work, goods, and services, and how these factors shape life in communities. They also discover how communities have changed over time.

Inuvialuit and Inuinait Students

Students learn about other communities that interest them in Canada. They choose a First Nations, Métis or Inuit community and another Canadian community to study. They learn about people that are important to these communities and learn about leaders from these communities. They understand the cultural group/s that live in these communities may have many generations of traditions. They learn the similarities and differences of land and water formation around these communities and how their lives are influenced by them. They study the natural resources around these communities, research the work people do, and study the cultural arts of the community. By studying these factors, they understand how their community and other communities change over time.

Cluster 3: The Canadian Community

Students explore different aspects of Canada, including national symbols, the origins of place names, and the presence and influence of diverse languages and cultural communities. They examine the diverse yet similar aspects of the Canadian community and how people in communities meet their needs. They also locate Canada on a map and consider connections that link Canada to other countries.

Inuvialuit and Inuinait Students

(same as general description above)

Active Democratic Citizenship

Citizenship skills enable students to develop good relations with others, to work in cooperative ways toward achieving common goals, and to collaborate with others for the well-being of their communities. These interpersonal skills focus on cooperation, conflict resolution, taking responsibility, accepting differences, building consensus, negotiation, collaborative decision making, and learning to deal with dissent and disagreement.

Grade 2 students will...

- S-100 Cooperate and collaborate with others.
Examples: make collective decisions, share responsibilities, seek agreement...

- S-101 Resolve conflicts peacefully and fairly.

- S-102 Interact fairly and respectfully with others.

- S-103 Make decisions that reflect care, concern, and responsibility for the environment.

- S-104 Consider the rights and opinions of others during interactions.

Managing Information and Ideas

Information-management skills enable students to access, select, organize, and record information and ideas, using a variety of sources, tools, and technologies. These skills include inquiry and research skills that enhance historical and geographical thinking.

Grade 2 students will...

- S-200 Select information from oral, visual, material, print, or electronic sources.

- S-201 Organize and record information using visual organizers.

- S-202 Use appropriate terms or expressions to describe periods of time.

- S-203 Use tools and technologies to accomplish given tasks.

- S-204 Use simple timelines to organize information chronologically.

- S-205 Construct maps that include a title, legend, and symbols.

- S-206 Interpret maps that include a title, legend, and symbols.

- S-207 Use cardinal directions to describe location.

Grade 2 Skills

Critical and Creative Thinking

Critical and creative thinking skills enable students to make observations and decisions, to solve problems, and to devise forward-thinking strategies. These skills involve making connections among concepts and applying a variety of tools. Critical thinking involves the use of criteria and evidence to make reasoned judgments. These judgments include distinguishing fact from opinion and interpretation, evaluating information and ideas, identifying perspectives and bias, and considering the consequences of decisions and actions. Creative thinking emphasizes divergent thinking, the generation of ideas and possibilities, and the exploration of diverse approaches to questions.

Grade 2 students will...

S-300	Formulate questions for research.
S-301	Consider advantages and disadvantages of solutions to a problem.

S-302	Use information or observation to form opinions.
S-303	Revise ideas and opinions based on new information.

Communication

Communication skills enable students to interpret and express ideas clearly and purposefully, using a variety of media. These skills include the development of oral, visual, print, and media literacy, and the use of information and communication technologies for the exchange of information and ideas.

Grade 2 students will...

S-400	Listen actively to others.
S-401	Use language that is respectful of others.
S-402	Express reasons for their ideas and opinions.

S-403	Present information and ideas orally, visually, concretely, or electronically.
S-404	Relate events and stories in chronological order.

Core Concept: Citizenship

Core Concept: Citizenship

Students will develop the knowledge, skills, and values necessary to become responsible democratic citizens who are actively engaged in their local, national, and global communities.

Citizenship education is fundamental to living in a democratic society. A critical consideration of citizenship provides students with opportunities to explore democratic values, and to determine their responsibilities and rights as participants in civil society. Students explore the complexities of citizenship in Canada and in the global context, as well as environmental citizenship, and citizenship for the future.

This exploration of citizenship helps students develop the knowledge and skills they need to live with others, to understand social change, and to support and promote social well-being. As they engage in public dialogue and debate, students enhance their understanding of citizenship, and are empowered to be active democratic citizens who contribute to the local, national, and global communities to which they belong.

Grade 2 students will...

KC-001 Recognize that all members of communities have responsibilities and rights.

KC-001A Recognize that all members of communities have a contribution to make.

KC-002 Identify significant Canadian, and Northwest Territorial symbols, places and monuments.
Examples: Canadian flag, NWT flag and floral emblem, Maple Leaf, caribou, polar bear, beaver, buffalo, NWT Legislative Assembly building, National War Memorial, drums, inuksuit, igloo, tipi ...

KC-003 Describe Remembrance Day as a time to think about peace and war.

VC-001 Value the contributions of individuals to their communities.

VC-002 Be willing to contribute to their groups and communities.

VC-003 Value being a member of the Canadian community.

Core Concept: Identity

Core Concept: Identity

The core concept of identity provides a foundation for students to understand who they are as individuals and as social beings. As they reflect on and express who they are, they build upon their identities as contributing members of groups and communities.

A strong sense of identity is a necessary foundation for interpersonal relationships, and contributes to students' abilities to participate in their communities as active and responsible citizens. Identities are shaped by many factors, including culture, language, spirituality, beliefs, socio-economic situation, gender, personal characteristics, and time and place. Identity formation is an ongoing process that involves observation, reflection, and interaction with others. Individuals affirm who they are by becoming aware of what distinguishes themselves from others as well as what connects them to others.

Social studies learning provides opportunities for students to develop self-awareness, and to enrich their personal identities and self-esteem.

Grade 2 students will...

KI-007	Give examples of factors that shape who they are. Examples: language, family, community, traditions, gender, where they live... .
KI-008	Recognize that stories of their seniors, groups, and communities help define who they are.
KI-008A	Recognize that their Aboriginal ancestors, Elders, and communities connect them to the past, present, and future.
KI-010	Identify their heritage and culture.
KI-010A	Identify their Aboriginal heritage and cultures.
KI-010F	Identify their francophone heritage and cultures.

VI-005	Value their groups and communities.

Culture and Community

students will explore the influences of culture and community on individuals and societies.

Culture and community play an important role in the development of citizenship and identity. Many factors contribute to a sense of belonging to a culture or community, including shared values, beliefs, traditions, and language. Students will explore the concepts, symbols, and expressions of their own and others' cultural, linguistic, and social communities. They will enhance their understanding of diverse perspectives through an exploration of the ways in which people live together in cultures, groups, communities, and societies. They will explore the connections between culture, community, citizenship, and identity, and will reflect upon their roles as members of groups and communities. Learning outcomes will include concepts such as human interaction, interdependence, and cultural diversity.

Grade 2 students will...

KCC-004	Identify the defining characteristics of communities.	KCC-012	Identify common features of Canadian communities. Examples: transportation, services, schools...
KCC-005	Describe characteristics of their local communities. Examples: transportation, services, schools...	KCC-013	Recognize that Aboriginal, francophone, and other cultural communities are part of the Canadian community.
KCC-006	Identify cultural and language groups in their local communities.	KCC-014	Identify English and French as the two official languages of Canada.
KCC-009	Describe groups with which they identify. Examples: cultural, linguistic, community, ...	KCC-015	Recognize that a variety of languages are spoken in Canada (with nine official Aboriginal languages in the NWT alone).
KCC-009A	Describe groups with which they identify Examples: cultural, linguistic, community, First Nation, ...	VCC-004	Be willing to consider diverse points of view.
KCC-011	Recognize the diversity that characterizes Canada. Examples: cultural, linguistic, geographic, artistic...	VCC-006	Appreciate the diversity of ways of life in Canadian communities.
		VCC-006A	Demonstrate interest in the shared experiences and stories of members of Aboriginal communities in Canada.
		VCC-006F	Demonstrate interest in the shared experiences and stories of members of francophone communities in Canada.

General Learning Outcomes

The Land: Places and People

students will explore the dynamic relationships of people with the land, places, and environments.

People exist in dynamic relationships with the land. An exploration of people's relationships with places and environments enables students to understand human dependence and human impact upon the natural environment. Students will explore diverse ways in which spatial and physical characteristics of the environment affect human life, cultures, and societies. They will consider how connections to the land influence their identities and define their roles and responsibilities as citizens, locally, nationally, and globally. Learning outcomes will focus on geographic understanding and skills, and will include concepts such as the relationship between people and the land, sustainability, and stewardship.

Grade 2 students will...

KL-016 Name natural resources in their local community.

KL-017 Give examples of ways in which the natural environment influences their communities.

KL-018 Locate their local community on a map of Canada.

KL-019 Describe natural and constructed features of communities studied.
Examples: landforms, climate, waterways; buildings, bridges...

KL-020 Give examples of natural resources in communities studied.

KL-021 Give examples of ways in which the natural environment defines daily life in communities studied.

KL-022 Explain the importance of conserving or restoring natural resources.

KL-023 Locate communities studied on a map of Canada.

KL-024 Locate Canada on a world map or globe.

VL-007 Appreciate diverse artistic representations of the land.

Examples: poetry, painting, music...

General Learning Outcomes

Time, Continuity, and Change

Students will explore how people, relationships, events, and ideas of the past shape the present and influence the future.

The past shapes who we are. An exploration of history enables students to appreciate the past, to understand the present, and to live with regard for the future. An important aspect of this process is the investigation and interpretation of Canadian and world history. Students will develop historical consciousness through a consideration of people, relationships, events, ideas, stories, and historical interpretations. They will reflect upon diverse perspective, parallel accounts, oral and social histories and personal narratives through historical inquiry. Through this inquiry students will develop historical understanding, which provides a foundation for citizenship and identity. Learning outcomes will focus on historical thinking and will include concepts such as progress, decline, continuity, causality and change.

Grade 2 students will...

KT-025	Relate stories of significant events and people in their local community's past.
KT-025A	Relate stories of significant events and people in their local Aboriginal community.
KT-025F	Relate stories of significant events and people in their local francophone community.
KT-026	Identify ways in which life in Canadian communities has changed over time.
KT-027	Recognize that First Nations and Inuit people are Canada's original peoples.
KT-028	Recognize that many people came to Canada from other parts of the world to establish communities.
KT-029	Describe the origins of a variety of place names in Canada.
KT-030	Give examples of the historical francophone influence and Aboriginal influence on the Canadian community. Examples: place names, stories of historical figures, celebrations...

VT-008	Value personal connections to stories of their community's past.
VT-008A	Value personal connections to stories of their Aboriginal community's past.
VT-008F	Value personal connections to stories of their francophone community's past.
VT-009	Value oral history as a way to learn about a relationship with the land.

students will explore the global interdependence of people, communities, societies, nations, and environments.

People, communities, societies, nations, and environments are interdependent. An exploration of this interdependence enhances students' global consciousness and helps them develop empathy with respect to the human condition. Students critically consider diverse perspectives as they examine the connections that link local, national, and global communities. Consideration of global connections enables students to expand their knowledge of the world in which they live and to engage in active democratic citizenship.

The specific learning outcomes within Global Interdependence focus on human rights and responsibilities, diversity and commonality, quality of life and equity, globalization, international cooperation and conflict, and global environmental concerns.

Grade 2 students will...

KG-031 Identify Canada as one of many countries in the world.

KG-032 Give examples of connections linking Canada to other countries.
Examples: food, immigration, media...

VG-010 Value Canada's global connections.

General Learning Outcomes

Power and Authority

Students will explore the processes and structures of power and authority, and their implications for individuals, relationships, communities, and nations.

Power and authority influence all human relationships. Students critically examine the distribution, exercise, and implications of power and authority in everyday life and in formal settings. They consider diverse forms of governance and leadership, and inquire into issues of fairness and equity. This exploration helps students develop a sense of personal empowerment as active democratic citizens.

The specific learning outcomes within Power and Authority include concepts such as political structures and decision making, governance, justice, rules and laws, conflict and conflict resolution, and war and peace.

Grade 2 students will...

KP-033	Identify leaders in their communities. Examples: mayor, reeve, chief, Elders, community volunteers...
KP-034	Give examples of ways in which they may demonstrate leadership.
KP-035	Identify possible sources of conflict in groups and communities.

VP-011	Be sensitive to others when taking on leadership roles.
VP-011A	Recognize that leadership is serving others.
VP-012	Value peaceful, non-violent ways of resolving conflicts.

Economics and Resources

students will explore the distribution of resources and wealth in relation to individuals, communities, and nations.

The management and distribution of resources and wealth have a direct impact on human societies and quality of life. Students explore the effects of economic interdependence on individuals, communities, and nations in the global context. They examine economic factors that affect decision making, the use of resources, and the development of technologies. As students explore diverse perspectives regarding human needs, wants, and quality of life, they critically consider the social and environmental implications of the distribution of resources and technologies, locally, nationally, and globally.

The specific learning outcomes within Economics and Resources include concepts such as trade, commerce, and industry, access to resources, economic disparities, economic systems, and globalization.

Grade 2 students will...

KE-036	Give examples of goods produced in Canadian communities.	VE-013	Appreciate that their quality of life is enhanced by the work, products and services of other Canadian communities. Examples: West Coast lumber, Atlantic fish, Northern mines, Prairie grain...
KE-037	Describe different types of work in Canadian communities studied.
KE-038	Give examples of needs common to all Canadians.
KE-039	Give examples of media influences on their choices and decisions.

Cluster Description

Students focus on various aspects of communities. They locate their local communities on a map and explore the influence of the natural environment, important people and leaders, and cultural groups in their communities. Through stories of their local community, past and present, students become aware of their identity and heritage. They also consider their personal contributions to leadership and peaceful conflict resolution.

Engaging Students in the Cluster

- Create an artifact centre of items and/or pictures from the local community.
- Visit a local museum or community landmarks.
- On a community walk, students sketch their observations and discuss what they would like to learn more about their local community.
- Invite a community leader (e.g., mayor, councillor, reeve, business person, police officer...) to speak to the class.
- Students explore community brochures, videos, and/or websites.
- Students contribute pictures and stories related to their community to a classroom bulletin board.
- Visit a seniors' centre to hear stories from the community's past.
- Invite a community member to visit the class in period dress and discuss life in the past.
- Students bring in or draw pictures (e.g., homes, buildings, landmarks, people...) to create a bulletin board display of the local community.

Learning Experience: 2.1.2 Natural Resources

- KL-016 Name natural resources in their local community.
- KL-017 Give examples of ways in which the natural environment influences their communities.

Description of the Learning Experience

The Northwest Territories has an abundance of natural resources. Students explore the natural resources of their local community and reflect on the influence of the natural environment. Because the next Learning Experience is entitled, “Stories of the Past”, it may help make the transition better from this LE to the next, if some aspect of the natural environment in this unit deals with a past use of a natural resource or highlight a resource which was in a different state than it is today. The fact that trapping brought newcomers and “trade” could be a starting point.

NOTE: Some communities may have a museum or a similar community service which may have an “old box of photos” or print resources they may lend you or follow-up with a visit and interpretation of some kind. Also, in November 2007, Tyler Heal authored a book about the street names in Yellowknife entitled, Signs of the Times. This presents an interesting idea for a research project in communities, using elders as sources to explain, for instance in Behchoko, why there is a street called “Government Tili” or, why Wrigley’s famous rounded rock that rises 1200 feet over the water is called Roche Qui Trempe a L’eau (mountain with its feet in the water).

Learning Experience: 2.1.7 Leadership

- KP-033 Identify leaders in their communities.
Examples: mayor, reeve, chief, Elders, community volunteers...

- KP-034 Give examples of ways in which they may demonstrate leadership.

- VP-011 Be sensitive to others when taking on leadership roles.

- VP-011A Recognize that leadership is serving others.

Note: Aboriginal and francophone distinctive learning outcomes are not intended for all students (see description of DLO's in front matter "Overview").

Description of the Learning Experience

Effective leaders help make our communities strong. Students identify community leaders, their qualities, and their contributions to the community, and describe ways in which they have personally demonstrated leadership.

Learning Experience: 2.1.8 Remembrance Day

| KC-003 | Describe Remembrance Day as a time to think about peace and war. |
| KP-035 | Identify possible sources of conflict in groups and communities. |

Description of the Learning Experience

Remembrance Day is a time to think about peaceful ways of resolving conflict. Students learn about the importance of Remembrance Day and how it relates to conflict in groups and communities. They demonstrate their understanding of its importance by preparing peaceful messages and attending a Remembrance Day ceremony.

Note: Please be aware of students who may be refugee victims of war and who will require sensitivity during this learning experience. Another nuance to be aware of in class discussions, is when sometimes even young children go beyond vague notions of war and peace, to the mentioning of the names of the “enemy.” If this should happen in a WWI/WWII/Korean War context or in some other more contemporary context such as terrorism, be aware of possible use of generalized and simplistic language such as the word “German” or “Islamic” in the same breath as “enemy”. For instance, if “Germans” are framed as the enemy during the World Wars in the hearing of a student of German ancestry, the child may be disturbed and a call could be forthcoming to you from parents; the careful use of certain words will help avoid stereotyping. Explain to students that when war is happening, good people who are on opposite sides suddenly become “enemies”—against their will. Avoid misunderstandings and stereotyping that can come from using collective terms by using other words more descriptive of the wars such as “Germany’s leader, Adolf Hitler” or “Germany’s government (‘bosses’ for Gr. 2) known as Nazis.” For instance in WWII, explain that a few powerful people in Germany with a bad idea in the 1930-40’s hurt many people around the world—even their own “German” people.

Cluster Description

Students enhance their awareness of the cultural and geographic diversity of Canada through the study of one Aboriginal community and one other Canadian community. They explore natural and constructed features of communities, and examine concepts related to natural resources, work, goods, and services, and how these factors shape life in communities. They also discover how communities have changed over time.

Engaging Students in the Cluster

- Students share stories of places they have visited in Canada.
- Introduce students to a variety of maps of Canada (e.g., political, topographical, satellite, road maps...), and discuss their observations of map features.
- Students contribute items from other places in Canada (e.g., souvenirs, pictures, flags...) to create a classroom display.
- Students view videos of a variety of Canadian places, and discuss their impressions of other communities.
- Create a class Word Splash of Canadianisms (Tim Hortons, Eh!, loonie, hockey tape...).
- Create a literature centre of books by Canadian authors.
- Survey students to identify what they know and want to know about Canada.
- Students contribute pictures to a bulletin board display of famous Canadians.
- Create a listening centre of music from various Canadian communities.

Description of the Learning Experience

This is the first of five learning experiences in Cluster 2, in which students explore various aspects of life in two communities in Canada. Canada’s population comprises many diverse cultural groups, including Canada’s original peoples and those who came to Canada from other parts of the world. Students explore the diversity of cultural groups in Canada, and examine how these people help shape our country and communities.

NOTE: Cluster 2 focuses on two Canadian communities outside the NWT, one of which is Aboriginal. The community studies may be planned and organized in a variety of ways, based on student interests and available resources:

- the entire class may study the same two communities
- collaborative groups of students may independently study the same two communities
- collaborative groups may study different communities as a co-operative learning project (e.g., Jigsaw, Co-op Co-op, or Carousel)
- each student may individually study two communities
- the entire class may study one southern Canadian community made up of Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people groups (e.g.s Fort Qu’appelle, Saskatchewan; Osoyoos, British Columbia;)This kind of study may be necessary if Cluster 2 outcomes require bridging from Cluster 1 (when depth by studying only one new community is more appropriate than the breadth of studying two new ones). In this scenario, Cluster 1 outcomes could be reviewed and used as a scaffold throughout this “one community–two populations” study

Suggested beginning research sources to choose each of the two communities:

Learning Experience: 2.2.3 Natural Resources

KL-020	Give examples of natural resources in communities studied.
KL-021	Give examples of ways in which the natural environment defines daily life in communities studied.
KL-022	Explain the importance of conserving or restoring natural resources.
VT-009	Value oral history as a way to learn about a relationship with the land

Description of the Learning Experience

This is the third of five learning experiences in Cluster 2, in which students explore various aspects of life in two communities in Canada. The land has a profound impact on human life, affecting lifestyle, recreation, job opportunities, as well as day-to-day activities. Students explore natural resources and ways in which the natural environment shapes daily life in communities studied, as well as the importance of conserving or restoring natural resources. Through discussions and interviews with peers, family, and community members, students come to value oral history as a way to learn about the land.

NOTE: Cluster 2 focuses on two Canadian communities outside the NWT, one of which is Aboriginal. The community studies may be planned and organized in a variety of ways, based on student interests and available resources:

- the entire class may study the same two communities
- collaborative groups of students may independently study the same two communities
- collaborative groups may study different communities as a co-operative learning project (e.g., Jigsaw, Co-op Co-op, or Carousel)
- each student may individually study two communities
- the entire class may study one southern Canadian community made up of Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people groups (e.g.s Fort Qu'appelle, Saskatchewan; Osoyoos, British Columbia;)This kind of study may be necessary if Cluster 2 outcomes require bridging from Cluster 1 (when depth by studying only one new community is more appropriate than the breadth of studying two new ones). In this scenario, Cluster 1 outcomes could be reviewed and used as a scaffold throughout this “one community--two populations” study

Suggested beginning research sources to choose each of the two communities:

1. http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Main_Page.

Type in: “List of Towns in Canada” or “List of Cities in Canada” or “List of Aboriginal communities in Canada”

2. www.aboriginalcanada.gc.ca/.

Description of the Learning Experience

This is the fourth of five learning experiences in Cluster 2, in which students explore various aspects of life in two communities in Canada. Canadian communities contribute different types of work and products to Canadian society, both of which enhance everyone’s quality of life. Students research different types of work and products produced in Canadian communities, and identify connections and relationships between work that is done and the goods and services that are produced and distributed as a result.

Cluster Description

Students explore different aspects of Canada, including national symbols, the origins of place names, and the presence and influence of diverse languages and cultural communities. They examine the diverse yet similar aspects of the Canadian community and how people in communities meet their needs. They also locate Canada on a map and consider connections that link Canada to other countries.

Engaging Students in the Cluster

- Students explore a map of Canada and share their favourites place names.
- Students contribute words from a variety of languages to create a cultural Word Splash.
- Students contribute cultural artifacts to a classroom display.
- At the school flagpole, students discuss the Canadian flag including its protocols, why it is important, and how it makes them feel.
- On a world map students identify places outside of Canada they have connections to or have visited.
- Create a display of Canadian art and/or artists.
- Display pictures or watch a video clip of Canadian participation in international sporting events.
- Have a “Canadian Dress-up Day.”

Learning Experience: 2.3.3 Cultural Communities

- KCC-013 Recognize that Aboriginal, francophone, and other cultural communities are part of the Canadian community.

- KCC-014 Identify English and French as the two official languages of Canada (with nine official Aboriginal languages in the NWT)."

- KCC-015 Recognize that a variety of languages are spoken in Canada.

- VC-003 Value being a member of the Canadian community.

Description of the Learning Experience

Although English and French are the two official languages of Canada, there are many other languages spoken in our country. Students explore different cultures and languages in their community and in Canada, and reflect on what it means to be a member of the Canadian community.

Vocabulary: language, official, cultural group (See Appendix D for Vocabulary Strategies.)

2.3.3 Cultural Communities

Activate
	KCC-013 KCC-014 KCC-015 VC-003	As an Admit Slip, students survey family members to determine which languages are spoken in their home. Students compile the information in a class chart, and analyze the data to determine which languages are most frequently spoken. Using the analysis, they predict which languages they believe to be the two official languages of Canada.

	KCC-013 KCC-015	Students survey friends, neighbours, staff members, and others to determine the cultural communities that are part of the Canadian community, and various languages that are spoken. They share the results of their surveys with the class, compile, analyze, and discuss the data, and make a class graph. 2.3.3 a BLM: Cultural Communities - Culture and Language Survey or
	KCC-014 KCC-015 VC-003	Students browse a variety of books in English and French, and view/listen to television/radio clips in both official languages. As a class, they discuss why we most often use English or French in our communities even though many different languages are spoken in Canada.
or
	KCC-013 KCC-014 VC-003	Students compose questions and invite a French teacher or other French-speaking community members to speak to the class about why French is taught in schools, and why French and English are the two official languages of Canada.
or
	KCC-013 KCC-014 KCC-015 VC-003	Students explore common phrases in other languages. They practise writing and speaking common phrases in English, French, Tlicho, Inuktitut, and another culture (try the other seven official languages of the The Northwest Territories: Cree, Chipewyan, South Slavey, North Slavey, Gwich'in, Inuvialuktun, Inuinnaqtun). Students reflect in their journals on the cultural diversity of Canada. TIP: Make books on tape in other languages for students. Find appropriate books written in other languages (e.g., French, Cree, Ukrainian, German...), and have someone who speaks another language record the book in that language.  Supporting websites can be found at < http://www3.edu.gov.mb.ca/cn/links/ss >
or
	VC-003	Students compose questions and interview family members, students in other classes/grades, staff members, and others about why they value being a member of the Canadian community. They discuss their findings with peers, and write a personal reflection page for a class book entitled "What it means to be a Canadian."

Learning Experience: 2.3.5 Canadian Needs, Choices, and Decisions

KE-038 Give examples of needs common to all Canadians.

KE-039 Give examples of media influences on their choices and decisions.

Description of the Learning Experience

All Canadians have common needs, although the ways those needs are met may be varied. The media is a powerful influence on the choices and decisions we make regarding how our needs are met. Students identify examples of common needs, and various ways needs are met throughout Canada. They also analyze media influences on their personal choices and decisions.

Vocabulary: media, needs (See Appendix D for Vocabulary Strategies.)

	KE-038 KE-039	Students submit examples of various types of packages (e.g., cereal boxes, snack foods, novelty items...), and describe advertising they have seen promoting that particular product. Collaborative groups of students list common features used to promote the products (e.g., colourful packaging, testimonials, jingles...), and discuss ways in which the media influences their choices and decisions. Students identify whether the products fulfill wants or needs.
_____ or _____
	KE-038 KE-039	Over the course of a week, students record instances of media portrayals of various products. Using a spreadsheet, students graph the occurrences, and discuss ways in which the media may influence their choices and decisions. Students discuss what types of products/items are portrayed most frequently in the media, and identify whether they represent needs or wants. NOTE: Perhaps agree as a class on the 13 product/items that everyone will look for during the course of the week. This kind of focus will yield data that can be compared between students and network channels. Perhaps there is one kind of product promoted much more on channels catering to children than other mainstream networks.

	KE-038 KE-039	As an Admit Slip, students share their television commercial viewing logs. As they watch television at home, they record the name and time of the television program and the products advertised in each commercial. Collaborative groups of students compile their commercial tallies and discuss how the media influences their choices and decisions. Students sort the products according to whether they address needs or wants, and discuss the results.

Learning Experience: 2.3.6 Global Connections

- KL-024 Locate Canada on a world map or globe.

- KG-031 Identify Canada as one of many countries in the world.

- KG-032 Give examples of connections linking Canada to other countries.
Examples: food, immigration, media...

- VG-010 Value Canada's global connections.

Description of the Learning Experience

Canada is part of a much bigger world. Students explore the continents and countries of the world as well as our many connections to other places. They use and construct maps, and focus on where Canada is located in the world and ways in which it is connected to other countries.

Vocabulary: globe, country, connections (See Appendix D for Vocabulary Strategies.)

Assessment	Outcomes	Strategies
Activate
	KG-031 VG-010	Students read or listen to books that give examples of connections linking Canada to other countries. As a class, they brainstorm the names of countries elsewhere in the world. Ideas are recorded on a class chart.

	KL-024 KG-031 KG-032 VG-010	Using a variety of map resources, collaborative groups of students identify physical features (e.g., water, mountains, islands...), political boundaries (e.g., countries, provinces, states...), and map markings (e.g., title, legend, symbols...). Students discuss the different symbols that are used and how symbols give maps meaning. TIP: Consider using CultureGrams™. Skills Assessment

Appendix A

Social Studies skill outcomes (eg. “S-100”) and English Languages Arts skill outcomes (“ELA”) are contained in the following skills progress chart. The practical path toward use of Appendix A and the closely connected Appendix C would be as follows:

1. select a strategy in a Learning Experience
2. note the Appendix A Skill # under the teacher/student icon
3. go to that skill in Appendix A and design a rubric for your learning strategy from the skills listed-- before the activity starts
4. check-off the acquired skills using the Appendix C “skills progress chart” during and after the learning
5. when applicable, encourage students to record the project, artifact, etc. they created on their copy of the student portfolio tracking chart that follows the progress charts
6. continued use of the chart will reveal whether or not certain strategies are being over or underused resulting in gaps or repeats in skill use

Generally, Appendix A provides instructional support in the using of a skill set and Appendix C provides a teacher tool to track skills used in the class, or individual student growth throughout the course for the various kinds of learning assessments (“as”, “for, and “of”).

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

1 – Active Listening

2-S-102 Interact fairly and respectfully with others.

- ELA- 5.1.2* Adjust listening, viewing, speaking behaviours according to the situation
- ELA- 5.1.3* Acknowledge achievement of others
- ELA- 5.2.2* Explore personal understanding of self and others

2-S-200 Select information from oral, visual, material, print, or electronic sources.

- Follow a plan to complete an inquiry
 - Access and retrieve appropriate information from electronic sources for a specific inquiry
 - Navigate within a document, compact disc or other software program that contains links
- ELA- 1.1.2* Express and explain preferences (for oral, print, and other media texts)
- ELA- 2.1.3* Use textual clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.1.4-7* Integrate knowledge of phonics and sight vocabulary with knowledge and purpose of language, structural analysis, and context clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.2.1* Explore a variety of oral, print, and other media texts
- ELA- 2.3.1* Recognize differences between forms and genres of texts; talks about audience/purpose in relation to form/genre
- ELA- 2.3.2* Listen, read, and view to identify the techniques and elements of texts
- ELA- 3.1.4* Recall and follow directions for accessing and gathering information
- ELA- 3.2.2* Match information to inquiry or research needs
- ELA- 3.2.3* Use the specific library organizational system, including visual cues, to locate information and ideas
- ELA- 3.2.4* Make connections between prior knowledge, ideas, information, and oral, visual, and written text features [such as table of contents, key words, captions...]

2-S-400 Listen actively to others..

Active listening is an integral component of all learning. Students use active listening skills in a wide variety of classroom experiences including brainstorming, discussion, collaborative group activities, listening to instructions and presentations, and viewing media. To develop active listening skills, students need opportunities to practise the physical behaviours, positive attitudes, and cognitive skills that enable them to become effective learners. Information on specific active listening “outcome links” and “corresponding illustrative examples” can be found in the NWT K-3 English Language Arts Curriculum document (August 2006). Also, information on specific listening strategies is found on page 8 of “Strategies That Make a Difference”, in Manitoba’s Kindergarten to Grade 4 English Language Arts: A Foundation for Implementation. This document is in each NWT school and can also be ordered at Manitoba Text Book Bureau.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does an active listener look/sound like?
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time as well as determine which students need differentiation
- Guiding self-assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy

2 – Brainstorming

2-S-100 Cooperate and collaborate with others.

Examples: make collective decisions, share responsibilities, seek agreement...

- Share information collected from electronic sources to add to a group task
- ELA- 1.1.1* Use conversation to explore personal understanding
- ELA- 2.1.2* Set a purpose and discuss anticipated meaning of text; use comprehension strategies to construct, confirm, and revise, and explain understanding
- ELA- 3.1.3* Contribute relevant information and questions to assist in group understanding of a topic or task
- ELA- 5.1.1* Work in a variety of partnerships and groups to follow pre-established group processes by responding to others
- ELA- 5.2.3* Plan and contribute to celebrations in the classroom community

2-S-102 Interact fairly and respectfully with others.

- ELA- 5.1.2* Adjust listening, viewing, speaking behaviours according to the situation
- ELA- 5.1.3* Acknowledge achievement of others
- ELA- 5.2.2* Explore personal understanding of self and others

2-S-200 Select information from oral, visual, material, print, or electronic sources.

- Follow a plan to complete an inquiry
- Access and retrieve appropriate information from electronic sources for a specific inquiry
- Navigate within a document, compact disc or other software program that contains links
- ELA- 1.1.2* Express and explain preferences (for oral, print, and other media texts)
- ELA- 2.1.3* Use textual clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.1.4-7* Integrate knowledge of phonics and sight vocabulary with knowledge and purpose of language, structural analysis, and context clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.2.1* Explore a variety of oral, print, and other media texts
- ELA- 2.3.1* Recognize differences between forms and genres of texts; talks about audience/purpose in relation to form/genre
- ELA- 2.3.2* Listen, read, and view to identify the techniques and elements of texts
- ELA- 3.1.4* Recall and follow directions for accessing and gathering information
- ELA- 3.2.2* Match information to inquiry or research needs
- ELA- 3.2.3* Use the specific library organizational system, including visual cues, to locate information and ideas
- ELA- 3.2.4* Make connections between prior knowledge, ideas, information, and oral, visual, and written text features [such as table of contents, key words, captions...]

2-S-400 Listen actively to others..2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

Brainstorming is an individual, small-group, or large-group strategy that encourages students to focus on a topic and contribute to a free flow of ideas to explore what they know or may want to know about a topic. The teacher or students may stimulate thinking by posing questions, reading brief text excerpts, or displaying pictures or other media. All ideas that are contributed are accepted, and no efforts are made to judge or criticize their validity or appropriateness. Individual brainstorming allows the student to focus on what he or she knows about a topic and a variety of possible solutions to a problem. Similarly, group brainstorming allows students to focus on what they know about the topic, but also exposes the students to the ideas and knowledge of others. This allows individuals to piggyback on the ideas of others, and to extend, revise, and incorporate new ideas into their thinking. Essential behaviours in brainstorming include active listening, acceptance of others' contributions, temporary suspension of judgment, and openness to new ideas.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students
- Recording focused observations to determine prior knowledge, gaps, and starting points for instruction
- Adding on to the initial brainstorm using a different-colour marker/font to show growth of knowledge, skills, and attitudes over time
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection on What do we/I notice about our/my thinking; Evidence of our/my thinking is..., using a Y-chart or journals

2-S-400 Listen actively to others..2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.2-S-402 Express reasons for their ideas and opinions.

- ELA- 4.4.2 Present information and ideas orally to a familiar audience; respond to questions

Discussion provides students with opportunities to generate and share their questions and ideas related to a concept, issue, object, or experience. Vary the setting of discussions to include both large- and small-group activities to encourage participation by all students. In the exchange of ideas that occurs in discussion, students contribute ideas, listen carefully to what others have to say, think critically, and develop positions or relevant arguments. Emphasize active listening during discussion, and model both the affective and cognitive skills students need to become active participants in discussions that reflect higher-order thinking. Discussions provide teachers with valuable information to assess student understanding, as well as the students' values and attitudes.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a discussion group member look/sound like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Recording focused observations to determine affective and cognitive skills or higher-order thinking skills
- Guiding self-assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals

3b – Sharing Personal Experiences

2-S-102 Interact fairly and respectfully with others.

ELA- 5.1.2 Adjust listening, viewing, speaking behaviours according to the situation

ELA- 5.1.3 Acknowledge achievement of others

ELA- 5.2.2 Explore personal understanding of self and others

2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

Opportunities to share personal experiences with the whole class or in smaller discussion groups allow students to develop confidence in communicating familiar events or experiences. This develops oral communication skills, sensitivity to diverse audiences, and awareness of protocols for being a respectful, attentive listener. It also allows students to connect experiences outside the school with learning in the classroom. Peers develop active listening skills as classmates learn to express their thoughts and ideas in an organized way. Encourage students to use W-5 questions (Who? What? Where? When? Why?) to communicate the personal experiences they are sharing.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students
- Establishing a safe environment where students will feel comfortable sharing personal experiences
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a member look/sound like?
- Recording focused observations to determine oral communication skills, connections, or organization of thoughts and ideas

3c – Relating Events

2-S-202 Use appropriate terms or expressions to describe periods of time

2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

2-S-404 Relate events and stories in chronological order.

Students may relate events orally, graphically, or through written text. Relating events provides students with opportunities in sequencing, identifying relationships or patterns between/among details, and chronologically retelling familiar events or experiences. Model various ways of sorting and organizing information and provide frequent opportunities for students to talk about the procedures they use to organize information. Provide direct instruction in the use of signal words (i.e., first, second, third, last, at the beginning, at the end, next, then, after, finally, at the same time). Observe students' skills in identifying patterns and relationships among ideas and information.

Think about...

- Modelling and guiding Relating Events through literature and think-alouds
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Recording focused observations to determine skills in sequencing and identifying relationships
- Offering descriptive feedback

Collaborative learning provides students with opportunities to work together to accomplish shared goals. Collaborative learning experiences help students develop greater self esteem and positive relationships with their peers, as well as skills related to problem solving, decision making, and critical/creative thinking. Frequent experience in a variety of collaborative groupings allows students to gain expertise in various roles (e.g., leader, recorder, reporter, timekeeper...) and practise interacting fairly and respectfully with one another. Emphasize that both the individual and group are accountable in collaborative learning experiences.

5 – Using Graphic Organizers

2-S-201 Organize and record information using visual organizers.

- Organize information from more than one source
- ELA- 3.3.1* Categorize related information and ideas using a variety of strategies [such as linking significant details, sequencing events in a logical order...]
- ELA- 3.3.2* Record key facts and ideas in own words; identify titles and writers of sources
- ELA- 4.1.1* Generate and focus ideas on a topic, using a variety of strategies
- ELA- 4.1.2* Prepare to create by exploring the connections between choice of forms, identified audience and purpose

Frames and graphic organizers are tools that assist students with thinking, organizing, comprehending, and representing texts. Frames and graphic organizers are also referred to as thinking frames, webs, thinking maps, mind maps, semantic maps, and concept organizers. Model the use of frames (e.g., webbing brainstorming contributions, using various types of frames to organize the same information...), and discuss the role of frames in helping students organize their thinking. Provide frequent opportunities for students to practise using familiar frames and introduce additional types of frames as appropriate.

Think about...

- Teaching and modelling the use of one graphic organizer at a time (Note: It takes approximately 6-8 weeks for students to internalize and apply a new strategy independently.)
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Offering descriptive feedback
- Recording focused observations on students' ability to organize thoughts and ideas with a graphic organizer
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals (e.g., A Y-chart helps me... because ...; Evidence of this is...)

Sorting and classifying helps students make sense of new information. It also helps teachers and students identify student prior knowledge as they make connections between previous experiences and new information. Sorting is the process of identifying unique characteristics within a set and dividing the items based on their differences. Classifying involves identifying common characteristics and grouping items/ideas that share these characteristics into labelled categories. Students may sort and classify, or compare and contrast, based on student-generated or pre-determined criteria.

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

Think about...

- Teaching, modelling, and guiding the process of sorting and classifying
- Recording focused observations to determine sorting skills used to identify unique characteristics within a set
- Recording focused observations on students' classifying skills
- Recording focused observations on students' development to compare and contrast
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals (e.g., When we/I sort and predict; We/I think about...because...)

2-S-300 Formulate questions for research

- Develop questions that reflect a personal information need
 - Compare and contrast information from similar types of electronic sources, such as information collected on the Internet
 - Process information from one than one source to retell what has been discovered
- ELA- 1.1.3* Reflect about self as a reader, writer, viewer, listener, speaker, and representer
- ELA- 2.1.1* Use prior knowledge to make connections between self and texts (oral, print, and other media)
- ELA- 2.2.2* Respond to texts creatively and critically
- ELA- 2.2.3* Identify similarities and differences between self and portrayals in text (oral, print, and other media) from other communities
- ELA- 2.3.3* Talk about the author’s use of voice, vocabulary and techniques in a variety of oral, print, and other media texts
- ELA- 3.1.1* Record personal knowledge of a topic to identify information needs
- ELA- 3.1.2* Ask questions to understand a topic and identify information needs

Generating their own questions provides students with opportunities to focus and plan their inquiry and identify purposes in their learning. When students search for answers to questions they believe to be important, they are better motivated to learn, and the result is deeper understanding. Framing research around an overall investigative question and then providing opportunities for groups or individuals to generate their own questions connects all stages of inquiry into a meaningful whole. Model the process of generating effective questions by using “Think-Alouds” (“Strategies That Make a Difference,” Manitoba Education and Training, 1996a, p. 288).

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students—keeping the end in mind
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What do quality questions look/sound like?
- Recording focused observations on students’ growing competence in asking initial and guiding questions
- Guiding self- and peer assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy

The acronym KWL stands for what I Know, what I Want to know, and what I have Learned. There are many variations of the KWL strategy and all of them provide a systematic process for accessing prior knowledge, developing questions, reviewing, and summarizing learning. A KWL is revisited throughout the learning process and provides opportunities for students to reflect on their learning. Model each of the phases of KWL and provide guided practice in the use of the strategy before expecting independent use. Younger students may use illustrations to construct a class KWL or a KWL wall.

- Adding on to the KWL chart using different-colour markers/fonts to show thinking and learning over time (Note: This is an obvious strategy for learners to observe their growth in knowledge and in questioning and reflecting skills over time.)
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals (e.g., Our/my thinking today is... because...)
- Adding a KWL chart to the learners’ portfolios as evidence of growth in thinking over time

2-S-400 Listen actively to others..2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

Interviews provide students with opportunities to collect and record information from a primary source and create avenues to authentic world expertise and experiences. After establishing the purpose of the interview (e.g., gathering facts, opinions, or stories), students identify appropriate candidates to interview and formulate questions that will elicit needed information during the interview. Questions should be clear and open-ended, and may include follow-up questions for in-depth information. Students need to consider how they will record information from the interview (e.g., audio recording, videotape, written notes), and practise both their questioning and recording information in mock interviews. Following the interview, students reflect on the information and process, and send thank-you acknowledgments to the interview subjects.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of students/outcomes—keeping the end in mind
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality interview look/sound like?
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation and/or appropriate scaffolding
- Guiding self- and peer assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals

ELA- 1.2.1 Clarify new understandings of connections

2-S-400 Listen actively to others..

2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

Learning happens best in a context that gives meaning to knowledge, values, and skills learning outcomes. Learning experiences that take students outside the classroom are more motivating and have a greater impact than activities that simulate the wider world. Capitalizing on community resources promotes knowledge and understanding of the broader environment and allows students to learn from the resources and expertise that are available in the community at large. Students gain authentic experience when they are involved in planning the purpose and logistics of the field trip. Teachers gain valuable insights into their students as they observe their interactions outside the classroom.

Think about...

- Engaging students in planning a field trip based on primary inquiry questions or the “W” in a KWL strategy
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality field trip look/sound like?
- Guiding self-assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals to assess the outcomes of the field trip
- Recording focused observations to facilitate student inquiry (Note: Watch for individual student curiosity, expertise, interest, and so on.)

Finding and observing pictures related to an idea or concept helps students acquire new information, stimulates questions, and provides opportunities for sorting and classifying. Pictures may include calendars, art, photographs, news and magazine clippings, and clip art. After establishing the criteria that the pictures are intended to represent (e.g., landforms, daily life, Canadian symbols...), students may browse a predetermined set of pictures or search for pictures matching the criteria. Encourage students to share thoughts and feelings evoked by the pictures they observe.

Think about...

- Connecting pictures to the topic/theme
- Asking new questions related to the inquiry
- Gathering information from the pictures
- Assessing the accuracy of the information in the pictures
- Using the information in acquiring and applying new learning and understandings

Video and media can offer students insights into experiences that would otherwise be unavailable to them. A key to teaching with video is to provide students with opportunities to be critical active viewers rather than passive recipients, and to include before-, during-, and after-viewing strategies. Introduce the video by setting the tone for viewing and explain how the segment relates to the ideas they are exploring.

Consider the following strategies before, during, and after viewing:

Appendix A – Skills AssessmentBefore viewing

- Establish a purpose for viewing by describing what the students are about to view and points to watch for.
- Activate with “story mapping”—predicting what the video might be about.
- Have students create questions about what they are wondering, or provide “focus questions” (i.e., informational questions, intuitive/interpretive questions...).

During viewing

- Silent viewing: Mute the volume to focus on cues (e.g., body language, setting, gestures, facial expressions...), and then review the segment with the sound. Discuss how perceptions changed with the sound.
- Sound only: Darken the screen to focus on audio cues (e.g., background noises, tone, sound effects...), and then review the segment with video. Discuss how perceptions changed with the video.
- Jigsaw: One group views silently, while the other group listens only to the soundtrack. Members from opposite groups collaborate to share their information and ideas. Alternately, one-half of the class, the “listeners,” sits with their backs to the screen while the other half of the class, the “viewers,” faces the screen. After the video segment, the listeners ask the viewers questions, and the viewers describe what was happening in response to the listeners’ questions.
- Freeze frame: PAUSE to freeze the picture. Discuss new vocabulary, make further predictions and inferences, or have small-group discussions about connections to the concept, topic, or theme.

After viewing

- Students may ask new questions (e.g., Some of my questions that were answered were...; Now, I know/wonder...).
- Discuss and evaluate what they viewed and their feelings and connections to the content.
- Discuss examples of fact and opinion from the video/media.
- Represent their new learning, or add new information to their inquiry journal or notebook.

Think about...

- Reflecting on the purpose for viewing the video
- Observing for new or extending understanding of concept, topic/theme
- Observing for gaps in students’ understanding
- Recording focused observations to facilitate further student inquiry (Note: Watch for individuals’ curiosities, new questions, expertise...)

Students need to understand that maps are abstract representations of places on the Earth, and that maps illustrate real geographic information through the use of points, lines, symbols, and colours. Maps help students understand how both physical and human features are located, distributed, and arranged in relation to one another.

Students need opportunities to both read/interpret and create different types of maps. When engaging students in map-making, encourage the use of mental maps to help them think spatially. Verbalize directions or read stories aloud and have students create mental images of described places and spaces. Have students—individually or collaboratively—create maps from these oral sources of information to practise listening skills, following directions, and visualizing.

Early Years students create maps with simple pictorial representations of their surrounding environment (e.g., the classroom, school, and neighbourhood...) in a variety of media. By beginning with objects, pictures, or drawings before moving to the use of abstract symbols, younger students come to understand the idea of symbolic representation. As students grow developmentally, the maps they create become increasingly more abstract, and students become proficient in the use of various map components (e.g., title, legend, compass rose, scale, latitude and longitude...). Map-making and map reading should eventually become as natural for students as reading and writing. Encourage students to incorporate maps in their daily work (e.g., journals, stories, research...).

Map construction can be an individual, small-group, or class learning experience, and provides students with opportunities to develop, clarify, and communicate their understanding of abstract ideas in a visual and symbolic format. Through the use of symbols and drawings in the creation of maps, students demonstrate their understanding of place, distance, and relationships.

Think about...

- Observing for students' map-reading, interpreting, and creating skills
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality map look like? (e.g., accuracy, appropriate symbols, readability, consistent use of scale...)
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information

Students need to understand that maps are abstract representations of places on the Earth, and that maps illustrate real geographic information through the use of points, lines, symbols, and colours. Maps help students understand how both physical and human features are located, distributed, and arranged in relation to one another.

Students need opportunities to both read and create different types of maps. As students engage in strategies that involve map reading/interpretation, they learn that maps have particular components (e.g., title, symbols, legend, directions, scale...). Students also come to understand that maps are important sources of physical and human geographic information, and are fundamental to social studies inquiry. Maps help students think critically as they find locations and directions, determine distances, observe distributions of people and resources, and interpret and analyze patterns and relationships.

Encourage students to consult maps when they engage in individual research and when they are working in collaborative groups. As well, use and interpret maps as a whole-class learning experience. Maps, globes, and atlases are rich and engaging resources that stimulate questions, conversation, and critical thinking.

Think about...

- Teaching, modelling, and guiding map reading/interpreting skills
- Observing students' knowledge and skills in reading, interpreting, and creating a variety of maps to plan for differentiation
- Observing students' skills in connecting information from maps to other concepts

- ELA- 4.2.1* Participate in focused conversations about own and others’ draft and final representations
- ELA- 4.2.2* Clarify and extend ideas by adding some details and / or information

Timelines generally consist of a vertical or horizontal line, with graduated marking points to indicate years, decades, centuries, or other periods of time. The points symbolically represent a chronological sequence of time, making past events more concrete in nature for students. The portrayal of significant dates, events, people, and ideas provides a visual reference for students, and helps them organize their thinking chronologically. Similar to maps, timelines require an understanding of proportion and scale, but they also use images, icons, and vocabulary that are associated with special events (e.g., birthday, holidays, first day of fall...).

Interpreting timelines through social studies inquiry helps students imagine and visualize events of the past, and therefore better understand abstract concepts related to history and chronology. Students need to see and interpret timelines, and understand their nature and purpose, before they are asked to create their own timelines.

Think about...

- Teaching, modelling, and guiding interpretation and creation of timelines
- Observing students’ knowledge and skills in organizing events chronologically, creating timelines and using information from timelines to plan for differentiation

- Observing students' skills in connecting information from the past, present, and future, and descriptions of periods of time
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals (e.g., What I am learning about timelines...; Evidence of my learning is...)
- Adding a created timeline and reflection to the learners' portfolios as evidence of understanding of events or historical periods

The portrayal of significant dates, events, people, and ideas provides a visual reference for students, and helps them organize their thinking chronologically. Similar to maps, timelines require an understanding of proportion and scale, but they also use images, icons, and vocabulary that are associated with specific historical periods.

Before students create their own timelines, they need opportunities to use and understand the nature and purpose of timelines. Students first examine, discuss, and use prepared timelines. Next, they contribute to the making of a class timeline, discussing and placing events on the timeline. The timeline can be an ongoing project that is integrated into the instructional process. Ideally, a class timeline would occupy the length of one wall of the classroom, providing room for all of the historical events that are discussed, as well as space for drawings, pictures, and illustrations. Finally, individually or in collaborative groups, students create their own timeline. Depending on developmental ability, younger students might simply label and illustrate events on a timeline that already has periods of time indicated. Older students, using mathematical skills, could determine and mark time periods before labelling and illustrating events.

Think about...

- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality timeline look like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Offering descriptive feedback
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation
- Guiding self- and peer assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals
- Adding a timeline and reflection to the learners' portfolios as evidence of growth and understanding of timelines

As students are given opportunities to develop and use the skills of active responsible citizenship, they should also be encouraged—when necessary and in appropriate ways—to engage in social action.

Student social action involves students interacting with others for the purpose of change. Social action might involve just a few students, the entire class, several classrooms or grades, the entire school, or the greater community. As students develop knowledge, values, and skills related to citizenship, they need to understand that social action is not only a right, but is perhaps the most important responsibility for citizens living within a democratic society. They also need to learn that, in most cases, social action involves collaboration, cooperation, and being respectful of others.

Social action is a natural result of authentic social studies inquiry. As students learn about social issues that affect them or others, and as they become aware of problems and injustices in their communities, and if they are truly empowered to be active and responsible citizens, they are likely to take actions that initiate change. If and when they do take action, there is perhaps no better means of assessing student learning. As students engage in social action, their behaviours become an observable expression of the social studies knowledge, values, and skills they have been learning.

Empowered students might initiate social action on their own, or teachers may choose to encourage student social action. Student social action may be the culminating activity of a learning experience, a particular cluster, or the school year. It might take the form of a local classroom or school project, such as a recycling/anti-litter campaign, or the creation of a local nature preserve. Social action with a global focus might involve raising funds for a community well or sending school supplies to children in a developing country. Events such as UNICEF campaigns and Earth Day may trigger projects. Opportunities might also arise for students to be involved in more complex civil action, where projects involve the lobbying of policy/lawmakers and legislators.

Social action is the ultimate application of social studies learning. It is through social action that students' altruistic attitudes are expressed within the context of the knowledge and skills of the curriculum. Social action projects not only familiarize students with specific issues, but also provide opportunities to understand processes, such as conducting issue-based research, letter-writing campaigns, media publicity, the creation of surveys and petitions, and demonstrations and other civil actions.

Content reading is integral to acquiring information and ideas for learning about a particular class topic or theme; and content subject areas are ideal contexts for improving, acquiring, and applying reading comprehension skills and strategies to make meaning of a variety of texts. Thus, teachers have an opportunity to extend reading instruction beyond the literacy workshop, and to offer learners another opportunity to practise and make connections to reading comprehension strategies in the content areas or inquiry workshop. Text sets are valuable resources for supporting content reading and a broad range of reading abilities. A text set consists of a variety of non-fiction and fiction texts on a theme or unit of study (e.g., picture books, visuals, short stories, historical fiction, songs, poetry, media texts, vignettes, textbooks...).

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

Competent readers use reading comprehension strategies independently before, during, and after reading. Developing readers need access to texts that they can read, and scaffolding and guided instruction to successfully access the required information and ideas from texts that they cannot yet read independently.

Think about...

- Using read-aloud, shared reading, guided reading, partner reading, and independent reading literacy contexts for assessing comprehension strategies and differentiating instruction
- Modelling before, during, and after reading comprehension strategies
- Monitoring students' choices of texts for seeking information
- Observing comprehension strategies (e.g., predicting, questioning, imaging, self monitoring, re-reading, re-telling, summarizing, inferring, skimming and scanning...)
- Recording focused observations to determine students' ability to get information and ideas from textual cues (titles, sub-titles, tables of content, images, captions...) and text structures/features (compare and contrast, sequential, description, cause and effect...)

- ELA- 4.2.2 Clarify and extend ideas by adding some details and / or information

2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

Journals are notebooks in which students record their personal thoughts and ideas, as well as information and questions about, and reflections on, what they hear, view, read, write, discuss, and think. Journals provide students with the opportunity to use exploratory language. The responses in personal journals are based on personal and emotional reactions. Other journals explore, clarify, and discover ways of refining and assessing thinking. Journals may include both written and representational formats. They may be a separate notebook or a section of another notebook, and may be specifically devoted to response and used across curriculum areas.

An Exit Slip is simply a brief note or conversation with students at the end of a lesson. Exit Slips provide students with opportunities to reflect on their learning and provide teachers with feedback to inform future instruction as students summarize their understandings of a lesson. Exit Slips may be open-ended, include a reflective stem (e.g., Today I learned...; I am still confused about...; I would like to know more about...; A question I have is...), or used to set a learning goal for the next day. Exit Slips may be completed individually or in small groups. Review Exit Slip responses to guide planning for future instruction.

ELA- 4.4.2 Present information and ideas orally to a familiar audience; respond to questions

RAFT (Role, Audience, Format, Topic) is a writing strategy that provides students with opportunities to creatively analyze and synthesize information by writing from a different viewpoint. Students assume a Role other than themselves (e.g., animal, historical figure, comic book character...). They choose an Audience (e.g., a person living in another time or place, a corporation, an inanimate object...). They select a Format (e.g., poem, letter, journal...) for their writing. They also choose a Topic (e.g., plea, persuasion, demand, excuse...) related to the inquiry. Because the focus of the writing is so well defined in a RAFT, students gain experience in clearly and completely explaining their point of view. A RAFT may be used as an activating strategy to help identify students’ prior knowledge or as a culminating task to demonstrate understanding.

Think about...

- Sharing and reflecting on examples of point-of-view genre in literature
- Modelling, guiding, and offering time to practise RAFT
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality written point of view (RAFT strategy) look/sound like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation

Persuasive writing provides opportunities for students to present ideas and information and express their opinions and viewpoints on an issue. Students need to be aware of their intended audience as they state their view and present evidence and examples to support their position. Composing persuasive writing allows students to practise organizational skills and make connections between prior knowledge and new understandings. Persuasive writing can provide evidence of attitudinal changes as students evaluate and synthesize new knowledge and information.

Creating a written plan provides opportunities for students to establish a process for achieving their learning goals. This strategy should be modelled in the Early Years classroom. Students identify their goals, outline the steps they will use to achieve them, and determine how they will know their goals have been attained. As students engage in planning, they come to understand that the plan is a means to achieving an end, and not the end itself. Written plans may be developed collaboratively or individually in Grades 1 and 2.

As students are engaged in inquiry and research, they need to experience various strategies for recording and organizing acquired information. Strategies may include drawing, simple note-making skills, process notes, Slim Jims, concept maps, or graphic representations. Additional information on information processing strategies may be found in Success for All Learners (Manitoba Education and Training, 1996b, p. 6.49) and “Strategies That Make a Difference” (Manitoba Education and Training, 1996a, pp. 59–64 and 114–117). As students develop a repertoire of strategies, they become able to choose the most appropriate method related to the purpose and the type of information.

ELA- 4.2.4 Experiment with language to create desired effect in oral, print, and other media text

ELA- 4.4.1 Experiment with techniques used to enhance presentations

ELA- 4.4.2 Present information and ideas orally to a familiar audience; respond to questions

Presentations provide opportunities for students to synthesize new knowledge and share their understandings. Presentations allow students to creatively express their understandings through a variety of intelligences (Multiple Intelligences), and may include visual displays, art, drama, music, video, reenactments, or simulations. Presentations are often collaborative in nature and intended to be shared with a broader audience. In planning their presentations, students consider how the structure of the presentation will effectively communicate new information to their intended audience.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students—keeping the end in mind
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality presentation/representation look/sound like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation
- Conferencing with students throughout the process
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals

11 - INFORMATION AND COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGIES

11a – Print and Electronic Research

2-S-200 Select information from oral, visual, material, print, or electronic sources.

- Follow a plan to complete an inquiry
- Access and retrieve appropriate information from electronic sources for a specific inquiry
- Navigate within a document, compact disc or other software program that contains links
- ELA- 1.1.2* Express and explain preferences (for oral, print, and other media texts)
- ELA- 2.1.3* Use textual clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.1.4-7* Integrate knowledge of phonics and sight vocabulary with knowledge and purpose of language, structural analysis, and context clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.2.1* Explore a variety of oral, print, and other media texts
- ELA- 2.3.1* Recognize differences between forms and genres of texts; talks about audience/ purpose in relation to form/genre
- ELA- 2.3.2* Listen, read, and view to identify the techniques and elements of texts
- ELA- 3.1.4* Recall and follow directions for accessing and gathering information
- ELA- 3.2.2* Match information to inquiry or research needs
- ELA- 3.2.3* Use the specific library organizational system, including visual cues, to locate information and ideas
- ELA- 3.2.4* Make connections between prior knowledge, ideas, information, and oral, visual, and written text features [such as table of contents, key words, captions...]

2-S-201 Organize and record information using visual organizers.

- Organize information from more than one source
- ELA- 3.3.1* Categorize related information and ideas using a variety of strategies [such as linking significant details, sequencing events in a logical order...]
- ELA- 3.3.2* Record key facts and ideas in own words; identify titles and writers of sources
- ELA- 4.1.1* Generate and focus ideas on a topic, using a variety of strategies
- ELA- 4.1.2* Prepare to create by exploring the connections between choice of forms, identified audience and purpose

2-S-203 Use tools and technologies to accomplish given tasks.

- Create visual images for particular audiences and purposes
- Display data in a problem-solving context
- ELA- 4.1.3* Create original texts (oral, print, and other media)
- ELA- 4.2.3* Print letters consistent in size and shape and begin to develop some proficiency with keyboarding and word processing
- ELA- 4.3.1* Use an editing process to check for complete sentences
- ELA- 4.3.2* Continue to use approximated and conventional spelling when writing; participate in an editing process using a variety of strategies and resources
- ELA- 4.3.3* Use an editing process to check for end punctuation and capitalization

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

ELA- 5.2.1 Tell, draw, and write stories about self and family

2-S-300 Formulate questions for research

- Develop questions that reflect a personal information need
- Compare and contrast information from similar types of electronic sources, such as information collected on the Internet
- Process information from one than one source to retell what has been discovered

ELA- 1.1.3 Reflect about self as a reader, writer, viewer, listener, speaker, and representer

ELA- 2.1.1 Use prior knowledge to make connections between self and texts (oral, print, and other media)

ELA- 2.2.2 Respond to texts creatively and critically

ELA- 2.2.3 Identify similarities and differences between self and portrayals in text (oral, print, and other media) from other communities

ELA- 2.3.3 Talk about the author’s use of voice, vocabulary and techniques in a variety of oral, print, and other media texts

ELA- 3.1.1 Record personal knowledge of a topic to identify information needs

ELA- 3.1.2 Ask questions to understand a topic and identify information needs

2-S-301 Consider advantages and disadvantages of solutions to a problem.

- Make predictions based on organized information

ELA- 3.2.1 Select relevant information from a variety of sources to answer inquiry or research questions

ELA- 3.3.3 Examine gathered information to decide what information to share or omit

2-S-302 Use information or observation to form opinions.

- Draw conclusions from organized information

ELA- 1.2.1 Clarify new understandings of connections

2-S-303 Revise ideas and opinions based on new information.

- Formulate new questions as research progresses

ELA- 3.3.4 Ask questions [such as “What did I do that worked well?”...] to reflect on inquiry or research experiences

ELA- 4.2.1 Participate in focused conversations about own and others’ draft and final representations

ELA- 4.2.2 Clarify and extend ideas by adding some details and / or information

Print and electronic research facilitates the inquiry process as students acquire new information, knowledge, and understandings. The focus of the inquiry is often guided by knowledge learning outcomes in social studies. As they plan their research, guide students through the following stages in the inquiry process: choose a theme or topic; identify and record prior knowledge; ask initial questions; explore and select primary and secondary sources; and plan for inquiry. As students are engaged in research, observe and offer guidance as they gather, process, and record information and focus their inquiry. To help students experience success in their research, guide them to continually assess how they will express their learning (i.e., keep the end in mind).

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on a manageable number of outcomes/students—keeping the end in mind
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality inquiry look/sound like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation
- Conferencing with students throughout the inquiry process
- Guiding self- and peer assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals

- Use technology to support a presentation
- ELA- 4.2.4 Experiment with language to create desired effect in oral, print, and other media text
- ELA- 4.4.1 Experiment with techniques used to enhance presentations
- ELA- 4.4.2 Present information and ideas orally to a familiar audience; respond to questions

Students may use graphics software to illustrate and label the concepts and ideas they explore. Images created with graphics software may be imported into other applications (e.g., word processor, presentation software...) and more fully explained. Students may change and adapt previously created images to reflect new understanding as additional information is acquired.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on the communication of concepts and ideas in the images created
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What do quality illustrations/diagrams look like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Offering descriptive feedback
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation

2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

Email offers authentic opportunities for students to communicate with others, near and far. Students articulate ideas and information and analyze responses for relevancy and accuracy. Students may use email to conduct interviews, request information, state a position, or share understandings on a topic or issue. Help students identify the purpose of their email communications and model compositions to achieve each purpose, ensuring that students use language that is respectful of others. Teach students about safety on the Internet and the importance of not including personal information in email communication with people they don’t know.

Desktop publishing includes text, images, maps, and charts to communicate information and concepts. It provides opportunities for students to synthesize new knowledge and represent their understandings creatively. Examples of desktop-published products include brochures, posters, and newsletters. They may be produced collaboratively or individually. Encourage students to identify the purpose of the final product and to plan accordingly to ensure it communicates the purpose effectively to their intended audience.

Word processing supports students through the writing process and encourages them to revise initial drafts and organize their writing to best represent current understandings. Students may take advantage of standard word-processing features to improve their writing (e.g., spell and grammar check, thesaurus, formatting options...). Encourage students to save copies of their files as they work through the editing and revision process as evidence of their growth and improvement in the writing process.

Concept mapping involves the visual organization of ideas and information. This helps students identify patterns and relationships, build upon prior knowledge, and stimulate creative thinking. As students acquire new information, they can organize additional ideas and information graphically to integrate new knowledge and reinforce their understandings. This helps students identify misconceptions and clarify their thinking. The use of colours, symbols, and images reinforces written text. The ease with which changes in relationships can be represented makes concept mapping particularly helpful for some students. Concept mapping examples include facilitating brainstorming (activating), gathering information (acquiring), or displaying new understanding (applying).

Think about...

- Teaching and modelling concept mapping
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does a quality concept map look like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information

2-S-201 Organize and record information using visual organizers.

- Organize information from more than one source
- ELA- 3.3.1* Categorize related information and ideas using a variety of strategies [such as linking significant details, sequencing events in a logical order...]
- ELA- 3.3.2* Record key facts and ideas in own words; identify titles and writers of sources
- ELA- 4.1.1* Generate and focus ideas on a topic, using a variety of strategies
- ELA- 4.1.2* Prepare to create by exploring the connections between choice of forms, identified audience and purpose

2-S-203 Use tools and technologies to accomplish given tasks.

- Create visual images for particular audiences and purposes
 - Display data in a problem-solving context
- ELA- 4.1.3* Create original texts (oral, print, and other media)
- ELA- 4.2.3* Print letters consistent in size and shape and begin to develop some proficiency with keyboarding and word processing
- ELA- 4.3.1* Use an editing process to check for complete sentences
- ELA- 4.3.2* Continue to use approximated and conventional spelling when writing; participate in an editing process using a variety of strategies and resources
- ELA- 4.3.3* Use an editing process to check for end punctuation and capitalization
- ELA- 5.2.1* Tell, draw, and write stories about self and family

2-S-302 Use information or observation to form opinions.

- Draw conclusions from organized information

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

ELA- 1.2.1 Clarify new understandings of connections

2-S-401 Use language that is respectful of others.

2-S-402 Express reasons for their ideas and opinions.

2-S-403 Present information and ideas orally, visually, concretely, or electronically.

➤ Use technology to support a presentation

ELA- 4.2.4 Experiment with language to create desired effect in oral, print, and other media text

ELA- 4.4.1 Experiment with techniques used to enhance presentations

ELA- 4.4.2 Present information and ideas orally to a familiar audience; respond to questions

Creating animations provides students with opportunities to apply new knowledge and graphically represent concepts and ideas. Students may create animations to illustrate patterns, cycles, changes over time, or cause-and-effect relationships. In creating animations, students develop skills in sequencing, timing, and duration of scenes/screens to communicate the concepts and ideas they are illustrating. The interactive and graphic nature of animations provides alternative ways for some students to demonstrate their learning.

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on how the animation creatively communicates the concept or idea
- Constructing student-generated criteria for What does quality animation look/sound like?
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information

Offering descriptive feedback

- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need differentiation
- Guiding self- and peer assessment, using a Met/Not-Yet-Met strategy
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals

11i – Using Software

2-S-200 Select information from oral, visual, material, print, or electronic sources.

- Follow a plan to complete an inquiry
- Access and retrieve appropriate information from electronic sources for a specific inquiry
- Navigate within a document, compact disc or other software program that contains links
- ELA- 1.1.2* Express and explain preferences (for oral, print, and other media texts)
- ELA- 2.1.3* Use textual clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.1.4-7* Integrate knowledge of phonics and sight vocabulary with knowledge and purpose of language, structural analysis, and context clues to construct and confirm meaning
- ELA- 2.2.1* Explore a variety of oral, print, and other media texts
- ELA- 2.3.1* Recognize differences between forms and genres of texts; talks about audience/purpose in relation to form/genre
- ELA- 2.3.2* Listen, read, and view to identify the techniques and elements of texts
- ELA- 3.1.4* Recall and follow directions for accessing and gathering information
- ELA- 3.2.2* Match information to inquiry or research needs
- ELA- 3.2.3* Use the specific library organizational system, including visual cues, to locate information and ideas
- ELA- 3.2.4* Make connections between prior knowledge, ideas, information, and oral, visual, and written text features [such as table of contents, key words, captions...]

2-S-203 Use tools and technologies to accomplish given tasks.

- Create visual images for particular audiences and purposes
- Display data in a problem-solving context
- ELA- 4.1.3* Create original texts (oral, print, and other media)

2-S-303 Revise ideas and opinions based on new information.

- Formulate new questions as research progresses
- ELA- 3.3.4* Ask questions [such as “What did I do that worked well?”...] to reflect on inquiry or research experiences
- ELA- 4.2.1* Participate in focused conversations about own and others’ draft and final representations
- ELA- 4.2.2* Clarify and extend ideas by adding some details and / or information

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

Using software allows students to access new information and interact with simulations and/or animations to explore new concepts and ideas. Simulations provide an environment where students can explore, experiment, question, and hypothesize about real-life situations that would otherwise be inaccessible. Students can explore “what-if” scenarios as they predict the results of various actions, modify parameters accordingly, and evaluate the resulting outcomes. Simulations and animations allow students to visualize complex and dynamic interactions and develop deeper understandings than may be achieved through a text description. By exploring a simulated environment, students can “learn by doing.”

Think about...

- Focusing assessment on students’ skills in exploring concepts and ideas with simulations and/or animations
- Offering descriptive feedback on students’ explorations, deepening understandings and testing of hypotheses
- Recording focused observations to monitor student growth over time and to determine which students need scaffolding
- Orally guiding/facilitating reflection, using a Y-chart or journals (e.g., Using software helps me...)

Appendix A – Skills Assessment

Spreadsheets and databases allow students to record and graphically represent data, analyze relationships and patterns, and manipulate data to solve problems. There are several opportunities to integrate the acquisition of spreadsheet and database skills with social studies. With spreadsheets, students can enter formulas to calculate values (e.g., population density equals population divided by area). Additionally, students can chart their data by creating graphs to facilitate data analysis. Databases are particularly useful for students to make comparisons in their recorded research (e.g., characteristics of daily life in communities studied, location and characteristics of geographic regions...). Students may then query the data to identify patterns and relationships. As students develop the skills to use spreadsheets and databases, they are able to apply these skills in the context of analyzing issues and concepts related to their social studies investigations.

Think about...

- Modelling and guiding the use of spreadsheets/databases
- Focusing assessment on the analysis of patterns and relationships rather than isolated technology skills
- Focusing assessment on the accuracy and completeness of the information
- Recording focused observations to determine prior knowledge, gaps, points for instruction, and/or growth over time
- Offering descriptive feedback to improve understanding of relationships between various factors in data analysis and/or research

Natural Resources - Definition

Working with a partner, explore the meaning of the term "natural resources."

Natural

List examples of natural items.

What is the meaning of natural? _____

Resource

List resources that are used or needed by your community.

What is the meaning of the term "resource?" _____

Natural Resources

What is a natural resource? _____

Natural Resources - In and Around Our Community

List examples of community activities that depend on natural resources and/or the natural environment.

Natural Resource/Environment	Community Activity
Example: Lake	Swimming, fishing

Natural Resources - In and Around Our Community

List one community activity that depends on a natural resource. Create an illustration and write about your illustration.

Natural Resource: _____

A large, empty rectangular box with a thin black border, intended for a student to draw an illustration related to their chosen natural resource and community activity.

Natural Resources - W-5 Chart

Natural Resource/Feature _____

Who uses it?	What are the ways in which it is used?
Where is it found?	Why is it used?
When is it used?	What jobs do people do using the resource?

Natural Resources - Mock Interview

One person will play the role of an interviewer, the other student will take on the role of a natural resource (such as a plant, animal or mineral).

Interviewer: What are you?

Natural Resource: _____

Interviewer: Where would I usually find you?

Natural Resource: _____

Interviewer: Why are you important to the community?

Natural Resource: _____

Interviewer: How do you help the people in this community?

Natural Resource: _____

Interviewer: Do you help any other natural resources and how?

Natural Resource: _____

Interviewer: What do you think would happen if you were to disappear?

Natural Resource: _____

Interviewer: Thank you for your time.

Stories of the Past - Retelling

Dear Parents/Caregivers,

Please share a story of significant events and people in our local community's past. Your child will record the details and share the story with the class.

Who is in the story?	What happens in the story?
Where in our community does the story take place?	When did the story happen?
Why is the story important?	How does the story help us understand our community?

Appendix C

Social Studies skill outcomes (eg. “S-100”) and English Languages Arts skill outcomes (“ELA”) are contained in the following skills progress chart. The practical path towards use of Appendix A and this closely connected Appendix C would be as follows:

1. select a strategy in a Learning Experience
2. note the Appendix A Skill # under the teacher/student icon
3. go to that skill in Appendix A and design a rubric for your learning strategy from the skills listed-- before the activity starts
4. check-off the acquired skills using the Appendix C “skills progress chart” during and after the learning
5. when applicable, encourage students to record the project, artifact, etc. they created on their copy of the student portfolio tracking chart that follows the progress charts
6. continued use of the chart will reveal whether or not certain strategies are being over or underused resulting in gaps or repeats in skill use

Generally, Appendix A provides instructional support in the using of a skill set and Appendix C provides a teacher tool to track skills used in the class, or individual student growth throughout the course for the various kinds of learning assessments (“as”, “for, and “of”).

Vocabulary Strategies

Appendix D

Vocabulary development is integrated within each learning experience, introducing or reinforcing understanding of specific words and concepts within the context of the learning experiences and the cluster.

A variety of vocabulary strategies may be used to assist students in activating, acquiring, and applying the appropriate vocabulary. Strategies may be modified to suit different grades.

Activate

Using a word processor, students type the new vocabulary into a word bank. Students may change the colour and/or font of the words they recognize and explain the meaning to a peer, or highlight related words and explain their relationship to a peer.

Grades 1-4

Students come to class dressed in a costume that represents a new vocabulary word or dramatizes the meaning of new vocabulary. Students guess the meaning of the word/concept that is illustrated.

Grades K-4

Other strategies:

- Students will complete simple word searches
- Vocabulary songs such as BINGO using new words
- Bingo games using new vocabulary with pictures prompts
- Word webs/brainstorming
- Word of the day
- KWL charts
- Word Run Game. Post vocabulary words on the wall in different spots throughout the gym. The students stay in the middle until a word is called. They then run to that word. You could do this game with any new information. This can also be done inside hula hoops.
- Tic Tac Toe Game. Divide the class into two teams of X's and O's. Write sight words in the tic-tac-toe spaces. Team members take turns coming up and selecting a space to read. If the child reads the word correctly, he or she may put up an X or O for his or her team. If the answer is incorrect, the other team gets to send a player to the board to try to read the same word. An easy alternative to save time and keep the game moving is to have several tic-tac-toe boards made up with words ahead of time on overhead transparencies. Another alternative is to give each child a blank copy of the tic tac toe board, and put the list of words on the board. The children can place the words wherever they want to on their board. As the teacher calls the words out, the children will have to be told if the word is an X word or an O word. The first child to get tic-tac-toe is the winner
- Good ideas were referenced from website www.teachingfirst.net/wordwallact.htm

Acquire

Using a word processor, students type new vocabulary into a word bank. Individually or in collaborative groups, students create a picture dictionary, inserting digital images or clip art representing new vocabulary. Alternatively, they create a talking dictionary, recording and inserting sound clips explaining the word, or using it correctly in a sentence.

Vocabulary

TIP: A volunteer may help students record and insert sound clips with the appropriate pictures

Grades 1–4

Enter vocabulary words in an electronic spelling program so that students may complete preprogrammed spelling activities

Grades 1–4

Using graphics software, students create mini-posters that include the vocabulary word, an illustration, and/or a definition. Print and display mini-posters, or set as desktop wallpaper

Grades 1–4

Students use sandpaper letters and crayons to do word rubbings for new vocabulary. Alternatively, students cover pre-printed word cards with string, beads, or sparkles. Students recite the words aloud while tracing the outline of the word.

Grades K–2

Students physically create new vocabulary words in various media (e.g., with modeling clay or magnetic letters, in sand or with paint).

TIP: Create your own “Etch-a-Sketch®.” Mix tempera paint, cornstarch, and water to a fairly thick consistency, and place the mixture in self-sealing plastic bags. Students use their fingers to trace words in the plastic.

Grades K–2

Students create songs or classroom chants to illustrate the meaning of new vocabulary words.

Grades K–4

Students use “Pocket Definitions” to reinforce new vocabulary. Students write new vocabulary on slips of paper and put them in their pockets. Several times throughout the day, call out “Pocket Definitions!” Students take the slips of paper out of their pockets and practise the words and definitions.

Grades 2–4

Use self-stick notes to label items displayed in an artifact centre (e.g., globe, map...).

Students find other items in the classroom that match the new vocabulary and label those items.

Grades K–2

Students create desktop vocabulary placemats. Students illustrate their placemats with new vocabulary, definitions, and pictures representing the new vocabulary. Students may refer to their placemats throughout the cluster.

Grades 1–4

Students match new vocabulary to magazine pictures or clip art illustrating the new word.

Grades K–4

Students practice new vocabulary using flash cards

TIP: Have students create a personal set of flash cards

Grades 2–4

Using print and electronic resources, students research new vocabulary, recording definitions, explanations, and images that illustrate or clarify the meaning of the word

Grades 2–4

Using a word processor, students create a clip-art collage of images representing new vocabulary. Students record a sound clip of the vocabulary word and insert it next to the related image. Peers predict the vocabulary word each image represents, and check their answer by playing the sound clip.

Grades 2–4

Other strategies:

- Guess ‘What am I?’ game
- ‘Around the World’ Game. All the students sit in a circle (or in their desks) One student stands behind another student who is sitting. The teacher flashes them a sight word. Whichever child says the word first will move on to the next student. The student who makes it back to his or her own desk or starting point is the winner.
- Game: BANG! Put all the words into a bag and if the child that picks the word can identify it they keep it. If someone pulls out the word BANG! all of the words go back in the bag. The student with the most cards at the end wins.
- Doing rhyming word activities such as.....
- Making words using Word tiles
- sentence strips at centres
- Multiple leveled vocabulary development game that is blended with a UN Social Justice project at; www.freerice.com
- Concept Bingo Game: Using the example of traditions as vocabulary, brainstorm examples of traditions and record with words or phrases on chart paper. Give each child a blank bingo card. They choose examples of traditions from the chart and record them randomly on the bingo cards. Teacher calls out traditions and the child with the first straight wins.
- Concept Riddles: Refer to class vocabulary list, provide an oral riddle or example of a situation that illustrates a concept and the children have to guess what the concept is.
- Scrambled words
- Create over the year a large class Social Studies vocabulary dictionary.
- Have students create a simple word search using cluster vocabulary.
- Using a graphic organizer, students create a word association chart that grows two words at a time.
- Create sensory charts of words; feels like, sounds like, looks like, etc

Apply

Using a word processor, students play “Vocabulary Bingo.” Students enter new vocabulary to fill the bingo squares. The teacher provides a definition, explanation, synonym, antonym, or cloze sentence for vocabulary words. Students match words on their bingo card to the given clue, highlighting the word or changing the font or colour. The first student to fill in the card or a designated row or column calls “Bingo!”

TIP: in the classroom with one computer, students may create individual bingo cards and print them

Vocabulary

Using word-processing or graphics software, students create word graphics that represent the meaning of new vocabulary words. Students share word graphics in an electronic gallery walk.

Grade 2-4

Collaborative groups of students create “The Answer is ...” puzzles using new vocabulary and quiz peers (e.g., “The answer is ‘north, south, east, and west.’ What is the question? The answer is ‘What are the four cardinal directions?’”).

Grade 2-4

Students play new vocabulary “Password.” Four students are divided into two teams of two. One student on each team is given a “secret” vocabulary word on a slip of paper. Taking turns, the first team provides a one-word clue to her or his partner who attempts to guess the “secret” word. The second team member provides an additional clue to his or her partner. Students continue until the vocabulary word is guessed.

Grade 2-4

Students compose poems (e.g., Cinquain, Haiku...) to illustrate the meaning of new vocabulary.

Grade 2-4

Students play “Vocabulary Beach Ball.” Label a beach ball with vocabulary words. Students sit in a circle and toss the beach ball to a peer. The student who catches the ball reads the word closest to his or her right thumb, defines the word, and/or uses it in a sentence. The student tosses the ball to another peer.

TIP: Students may ask peers for help/clues if they cannot remember the word.

Grade 2-4

Students play “I Spy,” providing clues to match something in the classroom that represents new vocabulary (e.g., I spy something round; I spy something with a tiny bit of blue on it; I spy something that spins. Answer: the globe). Peers guess the vocabulary word.

Grades K-4

Reinforce understanding of new vocabulary with exit or permission slips (e.g., students must respond with the correct vocabulary word when given a definition in order to leave for recess).

TIP: Show students a picture illustrating the vocabulary word or provide the word and have students respond with its meaning.

Grades K-4

Students play “Spelling in Motion” to practice new vocabulary. Taking turns, one student calls out a new vocabulary word, then spells the word out loud, repeats the word, and finally states an action word. Peers perform the action, spelling the word out loud (e.g., One student says “Citizen, c-i-t-i-z-e-n, Citizen, jumping jacks.” Peers do jumping jacks as they spell the word, performing one jumping jack for each letter.).

Grades K-4

Using “Hot Potatoes,” students demonstrate the understanding of new vocabulary by completing a teacher-created activity (eg, cloze passage, crossword puzzle, multiple choice, or matching quiz), using new vocabulary in context.

Grades 1-4

Using animation software or animation features of presentation software, students create an animation illustrating the meaning of cluster vocabulary.

Grades 2–4

Using presentation software, students create an interactive four-slide riddle for new vocabulary words. Students create three clues for each new vocabulary word, entering one clue for each of the first three slides. The fourth slide contains the vocabulary word that answers the riddle. Students share their riddles with peers who use the clues to guess the vocabulary word.

Grades 1–4

Other strategies:

- Making greeting cards using new vocabulary
- Creating a skit or song using new vocab.
- Journal entries and writing pieces
- Create a poster

Appendix E

The progression of skills over the five grades (K-4) in this appendix is Manitoba's expression. The use of "Grade 4" is for the benefit of the NWT teacher looking for the range of skill expectations over five grades (K-4) and provides an intended "profile" of a student approaching Grade 5. The NWT Gr. 4 skills list does not match Manitoba's rollout exactly but is generally aligned with it.

Hands-on Social Studies Grade Two

(Stand-Alone). Lawson, Jennifer, et al. Portage & Main Press (PEG), 2003. 209 p. ISBN 1-55379-005-7.

This made-in-Manitoba resource is based on the specific learning outcomes in the Manitoba Grade 2 social studies curriculum, and supports teaching in all three clusters (Our Local Community, Communities in Canada, The Canadian Community). It provides a variety of student activities, background information for teachers, theme vocabulary, learning extensions, Canadian Literature Links, and blackline masters.

This is a well-organized resource that includes creative, interactive, and meaningful student learning activities that connect to social studies, English language arts, art, and science. Assessment strategies are provided and include teacher, student, and group forms.

The resource contains both Canadian and Manitoba content. When learning about languages, cultures, and celebrations, specific references are made to Aboriginal and Francophone communities. When sensitive issues are addressed in learning experiences, teacher notes provide suggestions for approaching the experience with sensitivity to individual, family, and cultural differences. The resource focuses on respecting cultural differences, and reinforces pride in one's own culture.

The resource is coil-bound. It includes a detailed table of contents, and a consistent format for learning experiences including background information for teachers, materials needed, activities, extensions, and activity centres.

Suggested Use: Grade 2; Grade 2 - Cluster 1; Grade 2 - Cluster 2; Grade 2 - Cluster 3; Teacher Reference

Date Recommended: 2004-Mar-31

Recommended Learning ResourcesIn the Global Classroom 1

(Stand-Alone). Pike, Graham.

Pippin Publishing Corporation (UTP), 1998. 255 p. ISBN 0-88751-081-7.

This is a softcover Kindergarten to Grade 8 teacher reference resource. This resource emphasizes a teaching and learning strategy that combines child-centred and world-minded educational thinking. It builds frameworks for cross-curricular delivery, and offers a wealth of practical and engaging activities for students.

Themes within the text include: interconnections (perceptions, local and global communities); environment and sustainability (natural, built, social, and inner); health (physical, mental, emotional, spiritual, social, societal, and environmental); perception (perceptions and cross-cultural encounters); technology (benefits, tools, problem solving, technological change, social values, and consequences in the future); and futures (alternative, probable, and preferred).

The resource includes materials related to citizenship, diverse perspectives, global, identity, and economic learning outcome experiences.

Comment: Charts are included at the beginning of each chapter to indicate activities within the chapter and the index. The grade level for which the activities are suggested is not included.

Is That Right? Critical Thinking and the Social World of the Young Learner (Stand-Alone). Wright, Ian.

Pippin Publishing Corporation (UTP), 2002. 139 p. ISBN 0-88751-094-9.

This teacher resource emphasizes the value and rewards of critical thinking. It defines critical thinking as the ability to make reasoned judgments in problematic situations. It also demonstrates how critical thinking can be applied to social studies and other subject areas. It includes practical activities and assessment approaches (including rubrics). Chapters focus on critical thinking, teaching critical thinking, and assessing critical thinking.

This resource is based on current research. It is suitable for a wide range of learning styles, promotes active learning and creativity, and is well organized.

Lessons from Turtle Island: Native Curriculum in Early Childhood Classrooms

(Stand-Alone). Jones, Guy W.
(MON), 2002. 175 p. ISBN 1-929610-25-4.

This 175-page softcover professional resource contains valuable information on stereotypes and misconceptions about Aboriginal peoples in America. It has a U.S. focus, and is a general introduction to Aboriginal culture. Inuit or Canadian First Nations cultures are not featured.

It provides a detailed bibliography on Aboriginal culture, values, and heritage, including children's literature, with suggested activities that support integration across subject areas. It partially supports the Manitoba social studies curriculum outcomes for Kindergarten, Grades 1, 2, 4, and 5. It also provides age-appropriate learning activities.

Grade 5: Cluster 1: mapping

Cluster 3: daily life (as background for the Fur Trade)

As a teacher reference, it discusses the Prairies in terms of a place in which to live with all the plants, insects, animals, and birds that co-exist there. The pictures/maps are colourful and the detailed content is well organized and easy to find. Black-and-white line drawings that illustrate the diversity of the Prairies are also included. The background information helps in dealing with environmental citizenship (restoring and conserving the prairie ecosystems). Integration with science is supported.

Note: Teacher Background Information/Reference.

Grade 2 Resources Organized by Learning Experiences

Sensitive Content and Local Selection of Learning Resources

Although each resource listed in this bibliography has been reviewed by a team of Manitoba social studies teachers, school divisions/districts are advised to review all learning resources locally before they are used with students. This will ensure that local sensitivities are considered and that appropriate resources are selected for use in social studies classrooms. Although a statement of caution appears at the end of those annotations with potentially sensitive content, as identified by teacher/evaluators, all books/videos need to be reviewed for local sensitivities.

Definitions of Terms Used in the Learning Experiences

The following terms and definitions are used to describe how the resources should be used.

- Student Breadth: identifies student learning resources that address a wide range of topics for a particular grade.
- Student Depth: identifies student learning resources that provide especially effective learning experiences for students for a particular grouping of learning outcomes.
- Student Breadth and Depth: identifies comprehensive learning resources that provide both breadth and depth dimensions for a particular grouping of learning outcomes.
- Teacher Reference: identifies classroom strategies to assist teachers in implementing the learning outcomes identified for Social Studies.

How To Access Learning Resources

Grade 1 Video Annotations
(Alphabetical Order by Title)

A Feast for One's Eyes. (2004). [videocassette]. Series: My Brand New Life. [Canada]: Productions La Fete (Trading) Inc. & National Film Board of Canada. Media Booking #3544

This video is useful for Grade 2 Cluster 3 when discussing diversity and connections.

It profiles two young people from different cultures who share food served at special occasions. They both help to prepare and then participate in tasting the dishes unique to each other's culture.

Passport to Canada. Volume 1: From Coast to Coast. (2002). [videocassette]. Series: Passport to Canada. Montreal: National Film Board of Canada. Media Booking #6566

This video is useful for Grade 2 Cluster 3 when learning about the Canadian Community. The first three segments are suitable for grade 2.

Volume 1 depicts the scenery, history, and many cultures of Canada. The first segment, without words, promotes tolerance, respect, and sense of community amongst diverse peoples. It also celebrates citizenship. Segment two uses contemporary and archival footage to present our national anthem without words. Segment three presents a musical montage of images of Canada and Canadians without words. Ranging from diverse landscapes to the faces of our people, the segment emphasizes the creativity and innovation which makes us unique. The first 3 segments come to an end when a section entitled 'Postcards from Canada' begins (approximately the first 10 minutes of the video).

Sheena Azak of Canada. (1995). [videocassette]. Series: Children of Other Lands. [United States]: Warren Colman. Media Booking #5153

This video is useful for Grade 2 Cluster 2.

The video profiles nine-year-old Sheena Azak, a Native Canadian Nisga'a girl who lives with her family in Canyon City, British Columbia. The video depicts their involvement with the social customs and traditions of the Nisga'a people as well as their participation in the more modern ways of Canadian society.

Recommended Learning Resources - Short List and Websites

Appendix H

This appendix includes an NWT short list of resources--pilot-tested and evaluated. This list was initially composed at Early Childhood & School Services, Yellowknife (ECE) after research of Appendix F. After being tested by pilots during the 2007-2008 school year, this short-list of resources was group-evaluated by the various grade teacher groupings and finally posted here in this appendix. It must be noted resources in Appendix F, not found on this short list, were used by pilots. Therefore, use this appendix as a guide—not a comprehensive, one-stop list. Also, a small number of resources not found in Appendix F have been added to the short-list.

Because Social Studies skills are so well correlated to ELA outcomes, many pilots relied on literature titles normally used in ELA instruction to teach the outcomes and skills of Social Studies. These titles were often in the school or teacher's libraries.

This list is organized by clusters. Each item is rated according to its effectiveness. Even "N" (not recommended) rated resources are included since dropping them would leave them unflagged in Appendix F and G.

This appendix ends with a list of internet-based resources which were found to be helpful in the implementation of this course. A number of password-protected resources have been subscribed to by ECE and made accessible to all students, parents, and teachers in the NWT through use of the provided usernames and passwords.

CLUSTER 1: “Our Local Community”

Not recommended (of little use; connections intended to be made were not obvious)

Acceptable (met basic thematic requirements; learning was supported; title was helpful)

Very Effective (strong connections were made; learning was considerably enhanced)

Long Range Planning

Appendix I

Appendix I provides two tools intended for long-range planning of Social Studies curriculum implementation.

The first tool outlines a suggested roll-out of Learning Experiences over the course of the year with an emphasis on monthly sequence.

The second tool provides an example of a two theme per term approach (for a three term school year schedule). The emphasis is meant to be on content and theme integration.

The third tool offers two long-range planner--daily checklists. These checklists facilitate the tracking of "classes used" to maintain a balance of time for each Learning Experience.

Sequencing of Learning Experiences

The list of the Learning Experiences as ordered in the curriculum:

Cluster#1—	Cluster#2—	Cluster #3 –
“Our Local Community” 2.1.1 Characteristics of Communities 2.1.2 Natural Resources 2.1.3 Stories of the Past 2.1.4 Culture and Heritage 2.1.5 Personal Identity 2.1.6 Contributing to Our Communities 2.1.7 Leadership 2.1.8 Remembrance Day	“Communities in Canada” 2.2.1 Diverse Peoples 2.2.2 Features of Canadian Communities 2.2.3 Natural Resources 2.2.4 Work: Goods and Products, an Services 2.2.5 Diversity and Change	“The Canadian Community” 2.3.1 Canadian Symbols 2.3.2 Historical Influences 2.3.3 Cultural Communities 2.3.4 Canadian Diversity 2.3.5 Canadian Needs, Choices, and Decisions 2.3.6 Global Connections

The list of Learning Experiences in a recommended monthly order:

Sept.	2.1.5 Personal Identity 2.1.1 Characteristics of Communities
Oct.	2.1.2 Natural Resources 2.1.6 Contributing to Our Communities
Nov.	2.1.8 Remembrance Day 2.1.7 Leadership

Learning Experience Poster Series

Appendix J

Appendix J provides an 8.5 X 11 “thumbnail” of each poster in a series intended to be used as a resource with each Learning Experience. The appendix begins with the User’s Guide explaining the multi-purpose nature of the series.

These posters can be accessed in the following ways:

1. Glossy full-sized posters have been sent along with each curriculum document. These are ready to display and use in a circle time setting as anchor charts.
2. At time of publication, “Teacher Resources” at http://www.ece.gov.nt.ca/Divisions/kindergarten_g12/indexK12.htm displays the same thumbnails as listed in this Appendix. At a future time, these may be shown in “Curriculum Services” within “Social Studies” at the above website. These pdf’s can be viewed with a digital projector or printed off from the website in “grayscale” if necessary.
3. The posters are also found on the disk that contains the PDF of these curriculum documents. Again, a digital projector connected to your computer can display these posters from the disk or the posters could be printed off in grayscale as well.
4. These 8.5 x 11 thumbnails can be photocopied in grayscale if your copier has a photograph mode.

The Learning Experience posters are designed as a resource to support the new K-3 Social Studies curriculum.

Multi-Purpose Use of the Poster Series:

- Introduce each Learning Experience
- Provide an engaging visual to activate interest
- Offer a critical challenge
- Create a location to anchor the development of the Learning Experience

1) Introduce each Learning Experience; A List of the Outcomes for the Teacher

Kindergarten Social Studies is made up of three Clusters, or units of study. These clusters are broken into smaller units called Learning Experiences. In the kindergarten context, there are five or six learning experiences in each cluster. At the outset of each Learning Experience, teachers lead students through the first teaching strategy called activation (the second and third stages are acquiring and applying). In the Curriculum and Guide to Implementation, many activation strategies have been provided for teachers. At the activation stage, the teacher's interest is in reviewing and activating prior knowledge students possess about the topic through various introductory activities.

Through this poster series, the course offers another activation opportunity—it might be the first one used. The poster pictures are of an “open meaning” nature that allow the course outcomes to be raised and discussed in a relevant context. This discussion can lead to the posting of student responses on stickies around the poster.

The learning outcomes for the course are called Specific Learning Outcomes (SLOs). The SLOs for each Learning Experience are shown on the bottom of the posters, coded as Knowledge (K) or Value (V) type outcomes. These SLOs are the actual curriculum expectations that teachers are responsible to explore in K-3 Social Studies. The display of these SLOs provides a focusing device for the teacher to continue curriculum-centered lesson planning and discussion with students throughout the entire Learning Experience.

2) Provide an engaging visual to activate interest

For students who are visual learners, the high resolution photo provides a differentiated access to the SLOs. The photo was selected for its effectiveness in prompting responses about prior knowledge, opening the discussion about the intended learning outcomes, and encouraging critical thought around the photo's meaning. Other teacher-chosen photos could be used as well.

3) Offer a critical challenge

An emphasis particularly important in NWT Social Studies curriculum is that of critical thinking (or “critical thinking”) within a skills-based approach, as opposed to passive reception of pre-established, non-contentious “answers” often inherent in a traditional content-based curriculum approach. By critical thought, we mean the kind of thinking that is brought to bear upon a situation (in this case a photo) where students are tasked with reasoning through the plausibility and sensibleness of judgments that can be made about problematic situations—where the truth is “in doubt”. The photos offer students the opportunity to reason with and beyond the available data, using photo details as evidence toward fair-minded conclusions or encouraging inferences and plausible conclusions. Every attempt has been made to find multi-use photo--in keeping with the multi-purpose nature of this poster series--that are at a developmentally appropriate level.

Learning Experience Poster Series

The subject of the photo will determine the kind of critical challenge to be conducted. The basic task is framed around the critical thinking vocabulary of “clue” and “conclusion” where students are expected to discuss clues in the photo to support the conclusions they draw—using the 5WH chart as an organizing tool. A similar chart may also be created on a word processor, photocopied and given to small groups or individuals for independent learning. The WHs may be modified depending on the photo and lesson intent.

The basic critical task could be differentiated in other ways. For the photo on “Guide to Use: As an Anchor Chart for Stickies, Arts ...”, for example, we might ask for criteria for what a “best” version of the concept being discussed would be, (eg. “What makes a good interest or ability?”) and how well the object in the photo measures against that criteria--or the question of which of these criterion the poster best illustrates (eg. “The smiling lady really shows that an interest is something you love!”). Note the use of this second type of critical challenge at the bottom of the “Guide to Reading” poster.

The “Critical Question” gets at the heart of the Learning Experience’s SLO’s. It can be especially useful for feedback for learning (FFL), assessment for learning (AFL), and assessment of learning (AOL). For more information on critical challenges in elementary school, see the Critical Thinking Consortium web site (<http://tc2.ca/>).

4) Create a location to anchor the development of the Learning Experience

Anchor charts are used particularly in English Language Arts to increase the comprehension strategies of developing readers. The new Social Studies curriculum uses many “textual” resources making comprehension skills fundamental to the exploration of SLOs.

It is expected the posters-charts will become a vehicle to facilitate the development of the following comprehension strategies:

- monitor comprehension
- make connections to themselves, the world, and other ‘texts’
- post questions that arise and require further inquiry
- display images that are visualized
- record inferences made
- highlight matters of importance and draw conclusions
- synthesize learning by organizing or reordering the “postings”

The poster is meant to be large enough for the photo to be viewed by all students in a “circle time” setting, yet small enough to be placed in the middle of a larger easel-type paper where the student-created stickies, pictures, or other media can be anchored around the poster. These “postings” will indicate their thought development throughout the three stages of the Learning Experience.

Further on in this guide, “Guide to Use: As an Anchor Chart for Stickies, Arts ...” provides visual examples of postings that could be made as the Learning Experience continues. The nature of the postings will be determined by student writing and drawing abilities. Sometimes the teacher will scribe the student’s comments and have the student post the sticky.

To learn more about the use of the charts and other such strategies, refer to Strategies That Work by Stephanie Harvey and Anne Goudvis (2007, Pembroke Publishers Limited, Markham, Ontario).

More Rigorous Use of the Poster: Developing and Applying Criteria Before Using the Photo

- 1) Before the Learning Experience poster is used, prepare a poster-size piece of blank paper (or use the white board) with a column labeled, “Criteria for Really Good Directions” (ask, “what do really good directions to someone’s house have to be like?”)
- 2) List the student-given criteria in the column.
- 3) Show the Learning Experience poster to the students and ask them to use the criteria to write or orally give good directions to a place in this community

CRITICAL THINKING ACTIVITY--PLANNING SHEET: Grade _____

Critical thinking is reasoning through multiple, competitive alternatives to judge the most plausible, sensible or appropriate course of action or decision to be taken. Critical thinking can exist where there is contentious information and doubts about actual outcomes (44) and acknowledges many problems are “intractable” and require action with insufficient information (33). Critical thinking is “more than retrieval of information, rote application of a strategy, or mere assertion of a preference” (131). Critical thinking is not invited by, “Guess-the-one-right-answer-‘Where’s Waldo’”, or, “All-answers-are-acceptable” type questions (132). (adapted from Wright, Ian. (2002). Is That Right? Toronto: Pippin).

LEARNING EXPERIENCE: 2.2.4 – Work: Goods and Products, and Services

A Balsam Fir Christmas tree grower in Lunenburg County, Nova Scotia prunes the trees one last time a few weeks before the trees are harvested. The tree must have "three frosts" to stabilize the needles before cutting, hauling, baling, trucking, retailing, and finally dressing the tree. These trees grow rapidly in the sun. All that must be done is to harvest any taller trees nearby, usually spruce, alder, or birch that are creating shade and blocking the light. Although some trees are sold locally in a U-Pick fashion, most are sent to American markets—especially in Puerto Rico. The limbs of Balsam Fir trees of poorer quality are cut up and bound into wreaths that are sent across Canada. Many thousands have been placed on doors of some NWT communities, such as Yellowknife (above). Photo credits: Blake Wile.

	Conclusions	Clues
This map is one of the first to use the name "Canada." Where is the name?
What land in today's Canada is the map calling "in cognito" ("unknown")? Can you find it at the top of the map?
In the 1530's the explorer Jacques Cartier heard First Nations talking about their village. They called it "Kanata." This is the story about the beginnings of what name?
This map is written in Italian. Though not on this map, what province in today's Canada has a Latin name?

Critical Question: What is the best way to find out the truth about the history of a place?

2.3.2 Historical Influences

- KT-029 Describe the origins of a variety of place names in Canada
- KT-030 Give examples of the historical francophone influence on the Canadian community
Examples: place names, stories of historical figures, celebration...
- KT-030A Give examples of historical Aboriginal influence on the Canadian community
Examples: place names, stories of historical figures, celebration...

Conclusions are answers or ideas that you think of because of a clue. Clues are hints or pieces of information that help you find out something.

	Conclusions	Clues
What community would build a gate that looks like this? What do the words on the gate say? How could you find out?
What might be down the street behind the gate? Do you see any other evidence of this culture?
This gate is in Montreal. What main culture and language would be very large and popular in Montreal, Quebec, Canada?
What are some other languages you have heard spoken in your life so far?

Critical Question: What is the best way to communicate with someone who speaks another language?

2.3.3 Cultural Communities

- KCC-013 Recognize that Aboriginal, francophone, and other cultural communities are part of the Canadian community
- KCC-014 Identify English and French as the two official languages of Canada (with nine official Aboriginal languages in the NWT)
- KCC-015 Recognize that a variety of languages are spoken in Canada
- VC-003 Value being a member of the Canadian community

Ukrainian Pysanka (egg) in Vegreville, Alberta, Canada, 27 December 2002, Chris Stubbs <http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Image:VegrevillePysanka.JPG>. "Because the egg shape is axisymmetrical, the analogy with the earth is convenient. The pointed end on top is the North Pole (the POINT) and the fat end on the bottom is the South Pole (the END). The axis of symmetry is tilted 60 degrees from vertical. The area near the equator is a barrel shape. The poles are made of computer simulated caps. At the poles are 6-point stars, which is a common motif in Canada." To read further, check <http://www.geocities.com/williamwchow/egg/e-egg.htm>

	Conclusions	Clues
What is this large object? (research: "Vegreville, Alberta" or "Pysanka")
Why would any town put such a large one up on a pedestal?
Think of some groups of people who are different from your group of people. Can you name what is special about these groups? Do they have any special objects (as in the above picture) or special ways of doing things?

Critical Question: If your town was going to place a large object up on a pedestal, what would be the best way to decide as a community what it would be? What should happen if your community cannot agree?

2.3.4 Canadian Diversity

- KCC-011 Recognize the diversity that characterizes Canada
Examples: cultural, linguistic, geographical, artistic...
- KCC-004 Be willing to consider diverse points of view
- VL-007 Appreciate diverse artistic representations of the land
Examples: poetry, painting, music...

Conclusions are answers or ideas that you think of because of a clue. Clues are hints or pieces of information that help you find out something.

	Conclusions	Clues
Where in Canada is this? What clues could help you find out when doing more research?
What are some needs shown in this picture that all Canadians must have?
Where are there advertisements in the picture? What advertisements could cause you to decide to buy something?
How do you meet your needs in a different way than the way the needs are being met in this picture?

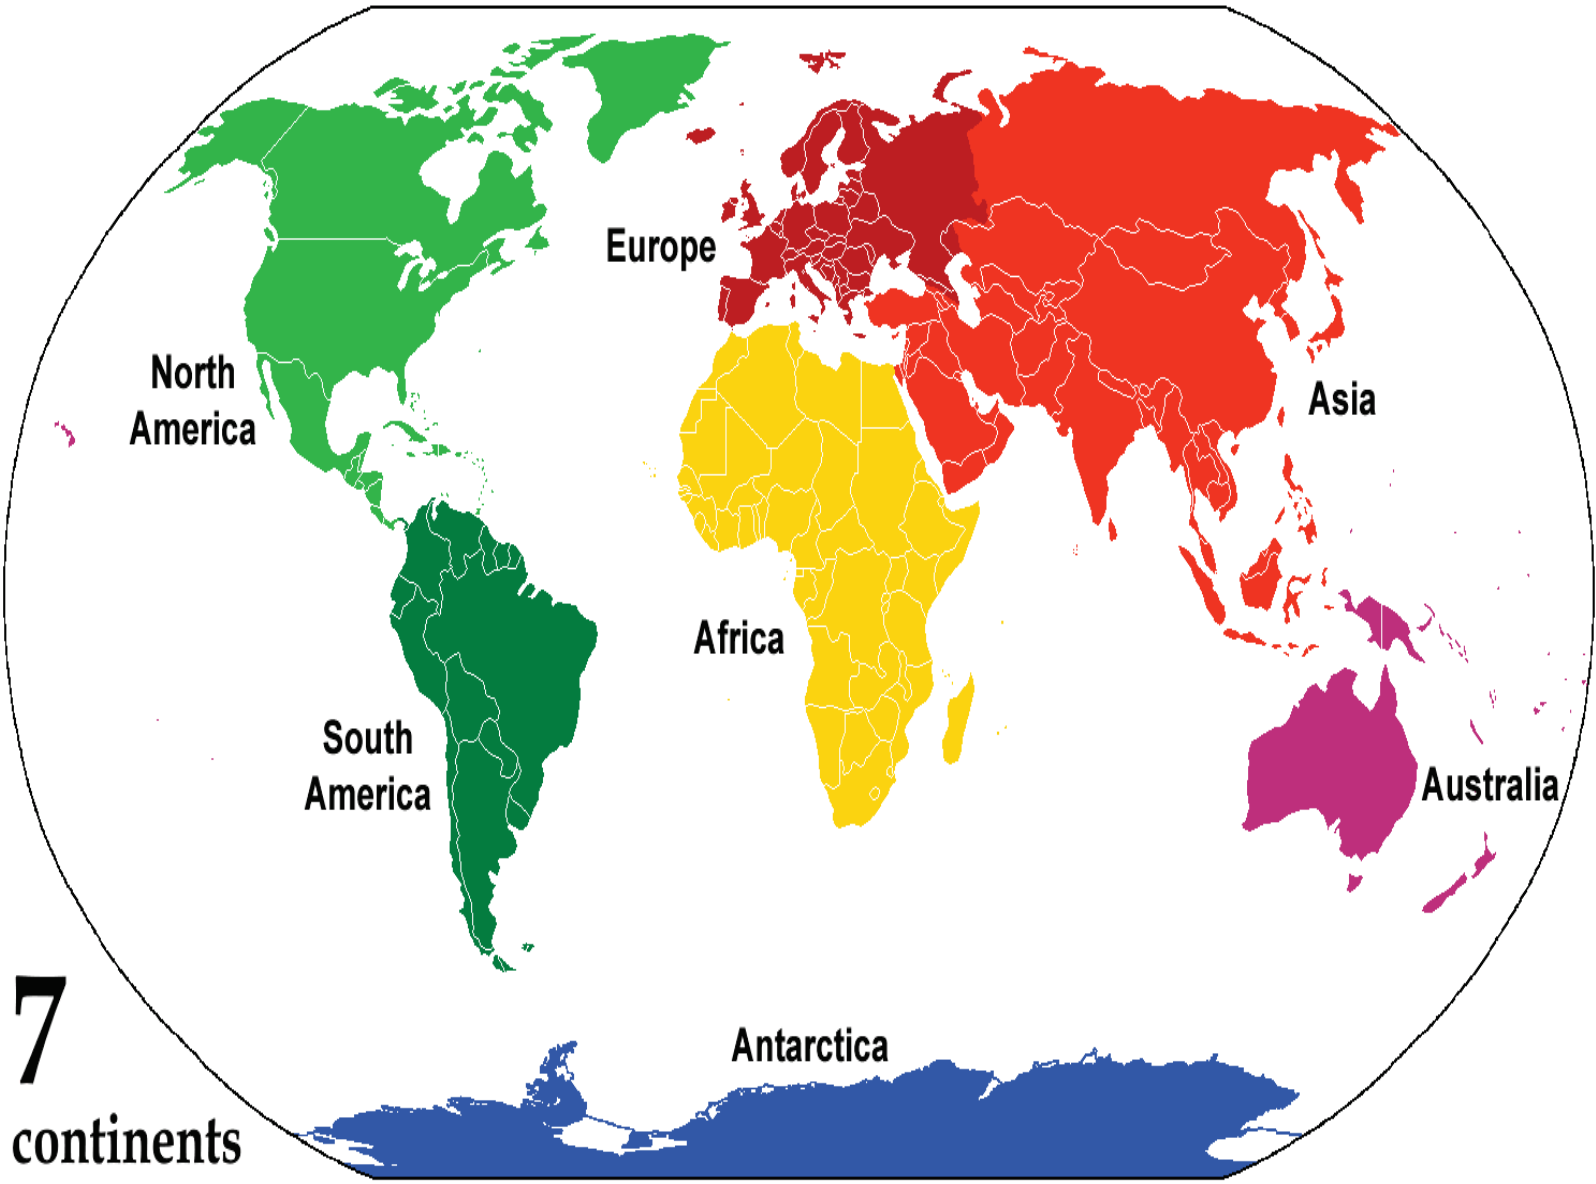

Critical Question: What is the best way to decide how you are going to spend your money?

2.3.5 Canadian Needs, Choices, and Decisions

- KE-038 Give examples of needs common to all Canadians
- KE-039 Give examples of media influences on their choices and decisions

Conclusions are answers or ideas that you think of because of a clue. Clues are hints or pieces of information that help you find out something.

	Conclusions	Clues
What does the map use to show the borders of countries? Canada's land makes it a very large country. Can you find a bigger country?
In what color group of countries (continent) is Canada? Which country is Canada? What is another country in the light green group?
Pick a country you think would be too far away from Canada to have any connections to Canada. Find out if it has a connection.

Critical Question: Canada has many resources and much land to provide for its citizens. Should we be connected to other countries? What kind of connections would be helpful, or even necessary?

2.3.6 Global Connections

- KL-024 Locate Canada on a world map or globe
- KG-031 Identify Canada as one of many countries in the world
- KG-032 Give examples of connections linking Canada to other countries
Examples: food, immigration, media...
- VG-010 Value Canada's global connections
